—The auction of lots on Pearl. Waban and Thornton streets last Saturday was very successful, the lots bringing good prices. Charles F. Rand was the auctioneer. The lots on Waban street sold at from 16 to 21 1-2 cents a foot; the lots on Pearl at 12 3-4 to 16 cents, and the two lots on Crescent Square at 9 3-8 and 111-4 cents. The Jennison homestead and lots on Thornton street were not sold.

—The Y. M. C. A, meeting in Eliot Lower Hall last Sunday was led by Mr. C. E. Eddy, who based his remarks on the Sabbath school lesson of faith. The quartet from the Methodist church rendered some very fine selections which added much to the interest of the meeting. Several took part in the meeting and all agreed it was good to be there. Next Sunday there will be a gospel service, the praise service beginning at 3.45. All are welcome.

—The Tuesday Club celebrated its 10th anniversary Tuesday night at the residence of Mr. I. T. Burr. The essay of the evening, on "Canterbury and it's Associations," was read by Dr. Bradford K. Pierce, one of the founders of the club and at present an homorary member. The officers for the eleventh year are 'President, Edward Sawyer; secretary, Rev. Dr. George W. Shinn; treasurer, Dr. Lincoln R. Stone.

—The fair of the young ladies of Ellet urer, Dr. Lincoln R. Stone.

—The fair of the young ladies of Eliot church held in Eliot Lower Hall yesterday evening was successful, and it is probable that quite a sum was realized. The refreshment table in charge of Misses Hatch and Farquhar, looked very pretty with its chrysanthemums and lighted candles. Miss Rawson was directress of the fancy table, and Misses Kate Emery and Misses Sawyer presided over a table laden with Huyler's candy.

—About one hundred and fifty ladies and gentlemen from the various sections of the city, Waltham and Watertown visited Mr. George E. Stuart at his home on Pearl street last evening and presented him with an elegant French clock. Mrs. Stuart received a handsome chair. The evening was passed in the most enjoyable manner, speeches, singing and dancing occupying the attention of all for several hours.

—Our attention has been called to a man who has been visiting the houses and stores of the city soliciting the work of putting the numbers on the buildings and claiming to have been authorized to do so to the exclusion of all others. He has also represented that the placing of numbers on the houses is compulsory. Such is not the case at all. The placing of the numbers on buildings is not obligatory, and no person has been given exclusive authority te sell and affix the numbers.

—An open barouche belonging to the Boston Cab company and containing Mrs. Mudge, of Boston, a lady guest and a child, created quite a sensation on Park street on 1 hursday. The horse became unmanageable, and tore along at a furious pace toward the railroad crossing on Washington street. The gates were down and the driver managed to rein the horse up against the buildings near the track. The carriage was badly broken but the occupants escaped unhurt. Another team was procured at Daniels' stables, in which the ladies returned to Boston.

— Dr. J. Walker Fewkes, formerly of returned to Boston.

— Dr. J. Walker Fewkes, formerly of this city, was one of the speakers at the last meeting of the Boston Society of Natural History. He described a "New Mode of Life Among Meduse." The case in question, which was discovered by Dr. Fewkes near Newport in July last, is unique. A small fish, closely allied to the pilot fish, was captured, having a small red and yellow growth upon its side, at first thought to be a medusa or jelly fish. Dr. Fewkes is now one of the professors at Harwood.

—Notice was given on Sunday morn-now one of the professors at Harwood.

—Notice was given on Sunday morning that two weeks ago enough subscriptions had been made to cover the whole of the mortgage debt of Grace church, but one of the largest subscribers, owing to ill health and other reasons, found it necessary to defer the payment of his pledge for some time longer. As the congregation wished to have the church consercrated on the anniversary of the opening, Nov. 30th., a new subscription list was started, with every prospect of success, two thirds of the deficiency having already been made up.

—Messrs, F, G, Barnes & Sons have having already been made up.

—Messrs. F. G. Barnes & Sons have negotiated several leases of real estate during the past week among them being that beautiful Queen Anne residence of Howard Phelps, situated corner of Waverly Avenue and Monument streets, to Walter T. Phipps of Newton Upper Falls; the former homestead of Mrs. F. A. Edmands, on Vernon street, to Chester Snow of Harwich, Mass; the homestead of Annie L. Jackson on Maple street to Edw. H. Denslow of New York. The above were all rented as furnished houses.

—At the Methodist church last Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Nichols preached a sermon of great power from, "Roll ye away the stone." In the evening Rev. Mr. Butters of Newtonville preached the third in the course of sermons on the Christian church, his theme being "What have I done for the church" contrasting the work as it is with what it should be and urging all to earnest efforts to build up the church and carry forward its work in the salvation of souls. Next Sunday morning will be Communion and reception of members, and in the evening Mr. Nichols will preach the closing sermon in the course, on, "Why am I outside the church."

—The 24-hour bievele race for a prize best instruction should make an early application.

The evening schools opened on Tuesday evening, some 50 men and boys offered by the Bicycling World started and 40 and being among the fastest riders in the country.

Last Sunday evening the Baptist church was well filled to listen to the varied exercises of their Harvest Concert. The children of the primary department, each with a little sheaf of wheat, marched in while the school sang, "Bringing in the Sheaves." They were arranged as usual on the platform, the baptistry being boarded over for the occasion. The harvest decorations of wheat and corn were very pretty, and "Harvest Home," in autumn leaves against the hangings were very effective. After responsive reading from the programs the school united in singing their opening hymn, "Come children raise your voices," followed with prayer by the Rev. Mr. Titus. The whole concert was an interesting one, as they always are at the Baptist church, but the singing and recitations by the little ones of the primary deartment were unusually good. An address was given by Rev. D. A. W. Smith, D. D. a missionary from Rangoon Burmah, and perhaps better known to some, as the son of Dr. Smith, the author of "America." He took the children in imagination, to Burmah, and showed them many of the sights there, explaining customs, etc. While his remarks were very interesting, they were rather long for the children, who were glad after a few words from the pastor to rise and join the school in singing their closing hymn. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Smith.

New Wing to be Added to the Hospital.

Information has been received by the trustees of the hospital, through the treasurer, Mr. Geo. S. Bullens, that one of our citizens, Mr. J. R. Leeson of Newton Centre, intends contributing $5000 for the erection of the Women's ward, and also $1000 more for the furnishing of the same.

and also $1000 more for the furnishing of the same.

This gift is a memorial of his deceased wife, Mrs. Georgia A. Leeson, and is a noble way of perpetuating her memory. For years to come there will be a succession of sufferers who will thank God for the relief which this benefaction will provide for them, and the name of Georgia A. Leeson will be written in enduring characters upon grateful hearts. It is amazing that more of our citizens have not yet learned that benefactions to the hospital provide a way not only for the relief of suffering; but of commemorating those near and dear to them who have passed out of sorrow into unending joy. Instead of erecting costly monuments, it is far better to do as Mr. Leeson has done, associate kindness to the living with tender memories of the dead.

His daughter cannot be forgesten for the living with tender memories of the dead.

His daughter cannot be forgotten, for the "Margaret Leeson Fund" is available year by year for the sick and crippled children who may need hospital treatment, and now the name of his wife will be associated with the "Georgia A. Leeson Ward." The gift comes at a time when it is greatly needed, and should lead others to ask what the hospital yet requires and what they can do for it. Already, through the kindness of Mrs. E. T. Eldredge, there is an endowment of $10,000, but this should be largely increased until the regular annuschneome is ample. It would be very easy for many who are prosperous to add from one to many thousands to the fund. Any contributions thus made can become a memorial fund or can bear, the name of the donor.

Newton Natural History Society.

A committee of the Society, with power to provide suitable time and place of meeting, has decided upon the first Wednesday evening in the month, as preferable for various reasons; and room 4. Eliot block, as the place. The next meeting, however, is postponed till Wednesday evening, Nov. 9th. for the convenience of the lecturer, Mr. G. L. Chandler, the ex-principal of the Williams school at Auburndale. Mr. Chandler is an enthusiast in Natural Science, and having just spent a year in Dakota, is prepared to give an especially attractive account of that wonderful region; its physical geography, mineral resources, natural curiosities, etc. Interesting specimens will accompany his statements and descriptions, and the paper will be one of unusual interest; to which the intelligent citizens of Newton, who appreciate such an evenings entertainment as is well worth attending, are cordially invited by the officers of the Society. The meetings it may be stated, once for all, are free to the general public, as well as to members.

Mr. Gavin opposed the motion. He

On motion of Bernard Early the third ballot was proceeded with, resulting as follows: Sherman Hoar, I; J. Russell Reed, 2; M. L. Halloran, 9; Edwin O. Childs, 14. Mr. Childs was declared the nominee and his nomination was made unanimous, but Mr. Childs also respectfully declined the nomination, and presented the name of M. J. Halloran. The latter gentleman was unanimously nominated, but he also declined to accept the nomination, and urged the importance of the selection of a strong and capable Democrat.

The name of J. R. Reed of Lexington was then presented, and the gentleman was nominated by acclamation. Richard Sullivan of Newton Upper Falls was reelected a member of the state central committee. The following were elected members of the senatorial committee. M. J. Lally, Waltham; Edwin O. Childs, Newton; L. W. Lyon, Waltham; R. P. Clapp, Lexington; W. S. Harris, Belmont; James N. The High School Review.

The new board of editors of the High School Review have begun the year in the most promising manner. The first number is a very handsome one typographically, and the editors furnish a great variety of contents. The frontis-piece is one of the best pictures of Mr. E. H. Cutler that we have seen, and as a photograph it would do eredit to as a photograph it would do credit to any of the large magazines. It is from the Heliotype Printing Co. of Boston, and friends of Mr. Cutler will be glad to have such a remembrance of him. It is worth much more than the price of the Review. The number contains the usual departments of School Siftings, an appreciative article on Wordsworth, by Mr. A. J. George, one of the new teachers, "An Autumn Walk," and some bright editorials, alumni notes, records of school societies, meetings, statistics, etc., together with a good amount of advertising. It is hoped that friends of the school will subscribe in sufficient number to raise the circulation to 1,000, which is the present modest ambition of the editors. The price is only 60 cents a year, and subscribers will derive much more than that amount of entertainment and instruction.

Fine Chrysanthemums.

Edwin Fewkes & Son of Newton Highlands, who are noted for their fine displays of chrysanthemums, have ex-celled themselves this year and have a display at their extensive green houses on Floral avenue, which can not prob-ably be excelled in this part of the country. A sample bouquet of new seedlings has been sent to the Graphic office, which give evidence that the exoffice, which give evidence that the exhibit they will make at the annual chrysanthemum show in Boston, Nov. 9th, 10th and 11th, will be fully equal to that of last year, when they took the first prize for the best display. They have now over 200 varieties, which include some 15 new seedlings, of very beautiful colors. Until next Wednesday, the date of the show, it will pay lovers of flowers to visit their green houses, which have been largely added to the past year, and see the beautiful varieties. Most of the plants exhibited at the show are sold for interior decoration, and only those are brought back which are needed for propagation. For decorative purposes pots of chrysanthemums are the most desirable flower that can be had at this season. ble flower that can be had at this season.

The Helping Hand Society Fair.

The New England Helping Hand Society, who are trying to establish homes for working girls in Boston, opened their fair in Horticultural Hall, Boston, Monday evening. The introductory address was made by Mrs. Ellen M. Richards, the president. Mayor O'Brien made an address, Rev. Rev. M. J. Savage read a poem, and a musical entertainment followed. The attendance during the week was quite large, and it is hoped that a satisfactory sum will be realized. The fair is open this evening and to-morrow.

PLAY GROUND AT NEWTON CENTRE.

Alderman Pettee from the committee on Public Parks, reported on the petition of I. R. Stevens et al, of Ward 6, and recommended that the city appropriate $2,500 for the purchase of about 4 acres of land bounded on Bowen street and Tyler terrace, provided that the citizens of Ward 6 donate an equal amount.

Mr. Pettee said that the petition had been before the board for several years, but had not been acted upon. This year the Park committee had held a meeting at Newton Centre and a large number of citizens had appeared and advocated the project. It was not intended to make it a public park, but simply a play ground for boys. The citizens were very much in earnest and were willing to raise the $2,500, and the Village Improvement, society would take care of the ground so that there would be no immediate expense to the city. It did not seem to him an unreasonable request.

Alderman Pettee then read the order for the giving of the money as a contribution, under the condition that the citizens contribute $2,500.

Alderman Grant amended by inserting the clause that the city should own the property. He said that the same matter had come up when he was a member of the Park committee and he had always approved of it; the only objection he saw was that it would be an additional burden to the tax-payers. The levy for next year cannot fail to be a heavy one, and this year the tax-payers had made so many complaints, that he did not think it wise to impose any additional burdens. Certain things must be taken care of, as the sinking fund and the interest on city loans. If all the money was appropriated that was asked for, the rate would be dispensed with.

Mr. Pettee said he was happy to hear such remarks from the chairman of the finance committee. For three years he had been trying to convince the board that the xax-payers might object to so much money being expended, and he was gratified to find that he was not wild in his fears. Nevertheless if the city could afford to burn up so much money b city.

Alderman Ward said that if the chance to buy the property was let slip now, it would be difficult to find such an opportunity again. The Village Improvement society were willing to spend $300 or $400 annually in fixing up the land, for some timeto come. It was only following a precedent that had been established in other rasts of the city of the a precedent that had been established in other parts of the city.

Alderman Harwood said that the project was an excellent one, and the boys of Ward 7 needed a play ground as much as the boys of Ward 6. He was glad to see that the citizens of the latter ward had enterprise enough to take active steps in the matter.

Alderman Pettee suggested that the boys from other parts of the city could use the grounds, by hiring barges to get there.

The roll was then called and the order passed, all the members voting for it.

THE MORSE FIELD DRAINAGE.

Alderman Nickerson moved that the order appropriating money for the drainage of Morse field be rescinded. The highway committee had met the Watertown committee and they had refused to do anything on that basis. They had made a proposition, however, and after the order had been rescinded he preported an order appropriating $5,500, and authorizing the committee to contract with Watertown, for the construction of a trunk drain on Water and Galen streets, to the city line, and on Morse, Park and Boyd streets to Fayette street, according to plans furnished by the city engineer, the cost to be charged to assessment of taxes for 1888. Alderman Nickerson moved that the Alderman Nickerson said that the Highway committee had had a long concultation with the Watertown committee, and they wanted to do the work as cheaply as possible, and were only willing to put in trunk drains. The committee therefore thought that Newton had better dispense with the lateral branches at present. This would relieve Boyd street of surface water, which was the most urgent need of that section, and the lateral branches could be put in later, when there was more money. The drains would traverse the some territory as at first attended.

The order was passed by a yea and nay vote.

OTHER MATTERS.

An order was passed approving the seals and boxes for the Yes and No license ballots.

Alderman Hollis reported from the committee on licenses, recommending that Geo. W. Lamson of the Central House, Ward 7, be granted a license to keep a pool table.

Alderman Nickerson asked why this license should be granted now, when similar applications had always been refused. Alderman Hollis stated that the petitioner kept a small hotel in a perfective respectable manner, and he wished a table for the use of his guests. It was not a saloon, and the proprietor was not dependent on the receipts. The applicant had referred to several clergymen who were in the habit of sending guests to his house, and this was not a parallel case to those who wished a pool table in a saloon.

Alderman Ward said he should like to Alderman Ward said he should like to Alderman Ward said he should like to know the opinion of the people of the village before granting the license.

A vote was then taken and the motion was lost, several members declining to vote. On motion of Alderman Nickerson the vote was reconsidered and the matter laid on the table.

Several bills were reported, but as the miscellaneous fund was exhausted, they were tabled, after which the board adjourned.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE

The leading article in The American Magazine for November is a graphic and Magaine for November is a graphic and deeply interesting description of an ascent of Mount Tacoma, the tallest peak in the United States except Mount St. Elias in Alaska. Dr. C. D. Hendrickson made this ascent to the highest attainable point on the north side of this mountain, which seems to be the centre of a wild and precipious region, once the seat of enormous volcanic activity, and still retaining a savage grandeur and loneliness. A view of Hendrickson's Falls—one of the illustrations of Tacoma scenery—forms the frontispiece of the number. The new instainment of Edgar Fawcett's "Olivia Delaplaine" presents the heroine at the beginning of a career for which she is manifestly adapted—that of a society queen. In an illustrated paper entitled "Cyclopia," P. D. Nott entertainingly describes the old forges and charcoal furnaces of Pennsylvania. The many other articles also help to make this an excellent number. American Magazine Co., New York.

THE FORUM.

THE FORUM.

The Forum for November has an article by ex-Gov. John D. Long on "The Use and Aluse of the Veto Power," in which he indicates that President Cleveland has not always exercised the forbearance in using a high constitutional prerogative that would preserve it from the familiarity which oreeds contempt. Brander Matthews, in "Books that Have Helped Me," has a great deal to say about dramatic literature, and he asserts that Moliere is the greatest of all writers of comedy. In "Caterpillar Critics," James Lane Allen reviews Mr. Howells's dissertations on American literature in Harper's Weekly with logical force and directness. The other papers inclinde "Warfare Against Society," by President F. A. P. Barnard; "Should Fortunes be Limited?" by Edward T. Peters; "Is the Negro Vote Suppressed?" by Senator A. H. Colquit; "The Panama Canal from Within," by George C. Hurlburt; "Shall Utah Recome a State?" by George Ticknor Curtis; "Christianity and Communism," by the Rev. H. Van Dyke, Jr.; "What is the Object of Life?" by W. S. Lilly, and "Avoidable Dangers of the Ocean," by Lieut. V. L. Cottman.

THE CENTURY.

Illustrated papers in the November Century include one on Augustus St. Gaudens, the sculptor, and his work. As St. Gaudens' statue of Lincoln, in Chicago, was completed since the article was written, Mrs. Van Rensselaer considers this statue "not only our best likeness of Abraham Lincoln, but our finest work of monumental art." In Mr. Kennan's first paper in the series on "Siberia," he protests against the use of the word "Nihillist," which, he says, the Russian government and the Russian conservative class have made the world accept as descriptive of all their opponents, from the "terrorists" to the lawabiding members of provincial assemblies who respectfully ask leave to getivances. He states that the world petition the crown for the rediess of grievances. He states that the word was first introduced in Russia by Turgenef in his novel "Fathers and Children," and was there used appropriately. This first paper in Mr. Kennan's series is one in four, descriptive of the present state of feeling in Russia, and its causes. It is calculated as an introduction to what he will have to say later on Siberia and the exile system.

Miscellaneous.

General Francis A. Walker of Massachusetts is to have an essay in the coming Scribner's entitled "What shall we tell the Working-classes?"

So enlightened a gentleman as General Walker should know better than to draw a distinction between a supposititious "we" and "working classes." There is but one working-class in this country, and with the exception of a few dudes and lunatics we all belong to it."—[Life.]

Pure Wheat Meal Contains More Life Sustaining Properties Than any

The history of the Roman Empire in the time of Julius Casar shows that wheat, as an article of food, combined with fresh out-door air life, is capable of producing and sustaining the highest type of physical manhood the world ever saw. The empire was built up and maintained by soldiers whose main article of food was wheat.

Dogs fed by Magendie (vide Kirks & Paget's Physiology) on flour, died in forty days; other dogs fed on wheat meal bread flourished and throve. The three-fourths impoverishment of the mineral ingredients proved fatal to the first. Why should mankind suffer from living on impover-ished food as they do?

People who live mostly upon flour will, if they use the Arlington Whert Meal, find their expenses in this department diminished three-fourths. The Wheat Meal will go further and give four times as much nutriment as an equal amount of flour.

A CHAPTER OF ACCIDENTS.

"Late, late, yestreen, I saw the new moone, wie' the auld moone in his

When the present harvest moon, of which we have seen so little, was a thin crescent, Aunt Heuley saw it late one afternoon over her left shoulder. As she believes in none of the superstitious saws of our grandfathers anent the moon, the of our grandfathers anent the moon, the fact troubled her little. But not so with Aunt Eliza, who had in spite of all her management seen it likewise. Aunt Eliza is a devout believer in signs. She has a panic when a dog howis; believes that when you change your residence, if a strange cat comes fawning about you, it brings good luck; takes certain medicines on the waxing and waning of the moon, according to the effect to be sought. The two aunts and their sister, Aunt Becky, and Laughing Water, one of the girls of the wild West, who very often smiles aloud, had determined on a trip to New York, to see the yacht race, and then up the Hudson and to Lake Champiain.

The weather looked dubious, and

The weather looked dubious, and Aunt Eliza felt dubious on the morning of the start. But the party ascembled at one of the Newton stations to take the train leaving shortly after 11 a. m., for Boston, from which they had express and Pullman train tickets for New York good on train leaving at one o'clock, and good at no other time. In the hurry of getting to the station they had mostly forgotten the moon's sinister peep. They waited so patiently lifteen minutes over time for a train that had always been punctual. Then it occurred to Aunt Henley to ask if anything was the matter. She was told that a collision had occurred up the road, and that there would be no train before 12.31, and it was very uncertain anyhow. It was now 11.45. Aunt Becky had gone to Boston by an earlier train. The others were to meet her down town. A telegram was hurriedly sent to her not to wait, but to meet her down town. A telegram was hurriedly sent to her not to wait, but to meet her party at station. Aud then in wild haste a stable was sought. The stable man moved quickly, and at 12.46 a foaming horse stood be.ore the Providence station. But Aunt Becky had not arrived. The foaming seed had to hunther up. The team had hardly disappeared with Aunt Eliza, oh her search, when Aunt Becky appeared. She had received no telegram. Now to wait for Aunt Eliza. It began to look interesting, with three minutes to spare. The moon was getting in its work. But at two minutes of one the foaming steed returned, and the train was boarded just as it was starting.

"A bad beginning makes a good ending," prates Aunt Becky. "Wait and see," replies Aunt Henley. The train was due in New York at 6. At Bridgeport, an unsate bridge had to be strengthened, and the train arrived at Grand Central Station at 9. The four reached a hotel just in time to be told that dinner was just over, and they were fain to satisfy hunger with coffee seven times warmed, and where help felling like shopping, concluded to remain in-doors and meet the others at lunch, at 2. Shortly atte ton streets were often nasty, they were never like that; she essayed the crossing to Center street, to board a Fourth Avenue car. A slight miscalculation as to the depth and slipperiness of the mud had evidently oeen made, for she endeavored at one stride to bridge an inky rill. she (not from choice), sat down in it. No boy who has sat down on a tack could arise quicker, and dripping, she entered a car, freezing the bland smile of the conductor, by a look of cold disdain. But she thought of the moon and groaned. Alighting from the elevator in the hotel, she was astonished to meet Aunt Eliza almost in hysterics, who rushed at her and gasped. "where did they find you?" Aunt Beck and Laughing Water had gone home feeling very anxious, and Aunt E. had been left alone to think of that sinister moon. She came at last to the conclusion that her sister had been disposed of either by drowning, or by a blow from a sandbag, and she had sent a porter to the police for aid. But the porter did not believe in sinister moons, and had delayed, otherwise it might have been more interesting still for me, soberly mused Aunt H., feeling as if she would; like to wrong the nose of the man in the moon.

As the rain was still falling next morn-the moon. As the rain was still falling next morn-As the rain was still falling next morning, and seemed likely to do so for a week the aunts abridged their trip and left for home. The moon seemed to "let up" on them as they returned, for there were no more mishaps. In the parlor car was a voluble man who loudiy expatiated on the genius of Edw. Burgess, "Why, he used to carry paners on this very B. & A. R. R. and he made boats out of 'em, too, why, he used to be my clerk, and I told him he was too nautical to clerk it, and he went to moulding. In a way, I may say that I made Ned Burgess what he is."

Aunt Eliza and Autt Henley

Aunt Eliza and Auht Henley became interested in an alert, well-dressed

fine-looking, well-dressed gentleman sitting opposite them, who wore a diamond crop in his shirt front, and used a square sole-leather valise, marked with the letter "H", as a desk on which he wrote telegrams. He had a gray moustache and imperial, and was quite bald. He remarked to Annt Henley that the Volunteer was beating, and it at once came over her that away back during the war, when she was in Washington, she knew a young newspaper mannamed "Joe Howard," and that he sat before her. But that was before mannamed "Joe Writes just as he talks, and what he said may be found in last Sunday's Globe. He is an American clear through, and believes that the American eagle can soar higher, remain longer on the wing, and scream louder than any other bird. Joe's great joke was the Writing of the bogus proclamation in 1864, calling for 300,000 men, and giving it to the country broadcast as the work of President Lincoln and Secretary Seward. The writer well remembers how one morning in May, 1804, every telegraph office in Washington was seized by government, and a file of bayonets was at every entrance. Seward tinkled his little bell, and Joe went to Fort Lafayette in New York Bay to reflect. But it turned ont a good business stroke, and now, a prince of good fellows, Joe earns $15,000 a year as a correspondent and lecturer. Here is a record of authentic facts. Can they be connected with a sinister moon?

THE NEWSON TRANSCRIPT HAS BEEN CONSOLIDATED WITH THE GRAPHS

INCREASING EXPENSES.

It is reported that all the committees of the city government are to ask for larger appropriations next year. school board has already given notice that it desires an increase, the trustees of the public library have the same demand in view, the public property com mittee, the highway committee, the street light committee and in fact all the other committees find that they can not begin to do the work demanded by citizens, unless this year's appropriations are largely increased.

Besides this, some $25,000 will have to be expended for the construction of new bridges, $5,500 will be needed for the drainage of Morse field, $2,500 for the Newton Centre play ground, and so on. These and a number of other items which have been charged to next year's appropriations will foot up in the neighborhood of $50,000. The state and county tax promises to be still further increased another year, and it is evident that the tax rate must either be raised to a much higher figure, or the assessors will have to work harder than ever before in elevating the valuation of property. It would seem to be a wise thing for the committees to revise the estimates carefully, and see how much judicious lopping off can be done, without seriously affecting the comfort or convenience of any large body of citizens. It is impossible to make all the public improvements demanded, and in view of all the extra expenses which must be provided for next year, only improve-ments that are absolutely necessary should be contemplated. In view of the complaints at the high taxes made from all quarters this year, it would not be a bad idea to inaugurate for one year a system of rigid economy.

Most of the members of the city government acknowledge the necessity of this, and they are generously ready to sacrifice the estimates of every commit-tee but their own. An amusing story is told of one of them, who is heartily in favor of greater economy in city expenses He was telling a member of another com mittee that the estimates must be cut down, as too much money had been ex pended this year. The latter asked if it was true that the economist's own committee was to ask for a larger appropria tion? "Oh yes," was the answer, "and we must have it."

THE STATE CAMPAIGN.

The apathy that has existed during the present campaign furnishes an ex-cellent argument for biennial elections,

There does not seem to be, however, any evidence that the vote cast in this city will differ materially from that of last year, as all who voted the Republican ticket then, will vote for it now, if they vote at all, and it will probably require a good deal of effort to get them

Washington this week, and had an interview with the President. He summed up the results of the interview as follows:
"The President is a Democrat, and looks forithe success of the Democratic party as the best hope of reform. He has no interest in cliques and sections, but in the whole party, and desires, as all Demo-crates must, that divisions should be healed, and disapproves this reading members out of the party who are sup-posed to be unsound on some special question, as poor policy and bad management." In regard to Civil Service reform, which must have been alluded to in con-nection with the Democratic fight in this state, Mr. Saltonstall reports the President as saying "Don't they [The Independents] know that I am a rock on that question?" We do not know what Collector Saltonstall replied, but there are reported to be some fears as to the perfect solidity of the rock.

The SOMERVILLE JOURNAL celebrated the 11th anniversary of the paper on Saturday by a banquet to the local representatives of the Boston press, and to the editors and proprietors of many suburban papers. The success of such an excellent paper as the Journal is worth celebrating. It has done much more for Somerville than it has for the owners of the paper, and its good work was amply recognized in the speeches that were made, the remarks of Rev. A. E. Winship being especially apt and appropriate. What was said of the good done by a loyal and enterprising local paper applies equally well in many other other places besides Somerville. The proprietors of the Journal have won success because they have deserved it.

The Democrats of this senatorial district had great difficulty in finding a candidate, so many declined because they could not attend to the duties. It is very gratifying to find the evidence that we are not a nation of office seekers, but perhaps the decliners may have been influenced somewhat by the fact that a nomination was by no means equivalent to an election.

SHERMAN HOAR of Waltham declined to be a candidate for Senator from this district, because the Democratic party is so thoroughly bad. He makes things even, however, by saying that the Re-publican party is not much better, and concludes that it is time for a new party For a young man, Mr. Hoar is getting along pretty fast.

A TOTAL of 367 names was added to the registration list, making it much larger than that of the state election last year, and 59 more than the number on the city election registration lists. This indicates a good deal of interest in the election.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

LT. GOV. BRACKETT AND PRESIDENT CA-PEN AT WEST NEWTON.

A Republican rally was held at the City Hall, West Newton, Monday even ing, and about two hundred voters were present. Mr. James T. Allen, chairman which have been found to answer every perpose in other states. The present custom of giving every man who has once been elected a second term, out of compliment to his more or less excellent who was accorded a cordial reception. He spoke briefly, referring to the comcompliment to his more or less excellent record during his first, gives us practically the same result as would be obtained by biennial elections, and also robs the campaign of much of its interest in odd years. People look upon the odd year election as a mere matter of odd year election as a mere matter of said little could be said against it. The record of Gov. Ames, was an excellent of the same record of Gov. Ames was an excellent of the same record of Gov. Ames was an excellent of the same record of Gov. est in odd years. People fook upon the odd year election as a mere matter of form, and it is very difficult to arouse any special enthusiasm.

The rally at West Newton on Monday evening was a proof of this. Two excellent speakers were provided, the meeting to offer. Its fair record for the past paskers were provided, the meeting was liberally advertised, and yet only about 200 voters attended, and at least a third of those present never vote the Republican ticket. The speeches were excellent, but it was hard work for the speakers, and the results were not especially brilliant. It was quite a contrast to the enthusiastic rally held last year at Eliot Hall.

There does not seem to be, however, any evidence that the vote cast in this city will differ materially from that of last year, as all who voted the Republican ticket then, will vote for it now, if they vote at all, and it will probably about 200 voters attended, and at least of the results were not especially brilliant. It was quite a contrast to the enthusiastic rally held last year at Eliot Hall.

There does not seem to be, however, and provide the Republican party for not being a prohibitory party, as he cannot being a prohibitory and the prohibito they vote at all, and it will probably require a good deal of effort to get them out.

It is to be hoped that with all the other reforms that are contemplated, that of biennial elections will not be forgotten.

REGISTRATION OF WOMEN.

The Registrars of voters announce in an advertisement in this issue the dates for the registration of women, who are duly qualified to vote for members of the school committee. All women who pay taxes have a right to vote, and the law regarding the same is given in the advertisement on the third page of this issue. It is too late for women who do not pay taxes to have their names put on the list this year, but others should attend to the matter at once. The first REV. E. H. CAPEN, D. D.

date is Nov. 12, and the last is Nov. 26.
There has been a good deal of inquiry in regard to this matter, but it is set forth so plainly that all can understand it. regard to this mark of the registration for the city election will be unusually large, and will show a great increase over that for the state election, which was closed last week.

Collector Saltonstall has been in Washington this week, and had an interior washington the registration for the state election, which was closed last week.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR BRACKETT

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR BRACKETT
followed with the closing speech, being introduced by Chairman Robinson as almost a native of West Newton, he having spent a large portion of his early days there on visits to his uncle, the lamented Dr. Brown, one of West Newton's most prominent physicians. Mr. Brackett arraigned the Democratic National Administration as being a failure from a civil service reform standpoint, according to George William Curtis's own admission.

The speaker referred to the action of the Democrats in abusing Gen. Corse and Hon. Leverett Saltonstall, and said that the only reason they had for criticism was owing to their conduct of their offices in accordance with the principles to which their party is supposed to be devoted. Lovering was nominated in place of Russell, because the party did not believe in civil service reform. In relation to temperance, the Republican party had always favored laws restricting the sale of intoxicants. He reform measures or candidates through, cited the action of the smelling committees being opposed to fair dealing, and spoke of the Democratic State nominations as having been made by not the best element in the Democratic party by any means. He also pointed out the difference between the Democratic and Republican State platforms concerning temperance, declaring that while the former said nothing the latter contained resolutions favoring submitting the question of constitutional prohibition to the people. The saloon interests are therefore united in attempting to defeat the Republican Representatives.

(Boston Herald)

The Newton Graphic begins its 16th year by appearing in a new and enlarged form, printed on a new Babcock press. It is now an eight page paper, six columns to a page, well filled with news, editorials and advertisements. Before Mr. Baldwin assumed the management of the Graphic it was a paper of small circulation and influence, but it has, under his management, in the past two years become popular, newsy and influential, and its enlargement is indicative of well deserved success.

—The CombinationClub of this village, which is composed of a number of lads well known here, and has been in existence for two years or more, gave a farewell supper last Friday evening to one of its members, Master Howard Emerson, who is soon to take up his abode in New York, much to the regret of his colleagues here. At 0 o'clock, in their club House on Mrs. George Kimball's grounds, the six members assembled. The interior of the house was pleasantly illuminated by colored candles and Chinese lanterns; an enjoyable repast was partaken of, flavored by appropriate speeches from the president, Master Kimball, and others. A box of delicious confectionery was presented the beneficary, by Masters McDonald and Cummings, and a fine base ball bat was given the club by the retiring member. A pleasant evening closed at 9 o'clock, with three cheers for the Combination Club and its friend, who is so soon to go away.

WEST NEWTON.

-Mrs. Wise and her daughters return from Portsmouth, N. H., next week. -Rev. Francis Tiffany presided at the meeting of the Unitarian Union on Monday.

-Mr. John W. Carter, who has been making a trip to Europe with his son, has returned home.

—Mr. George Frost has bought two desirable lots of laud on Prince street from Mr. H. Day. —Miss Edith Gould gave a "Hallow e'en Party" to six of her schoolmates on the night of Oct. 31.

—Mrs. Eliza Brewer, after an absence of three years in California, has returned to her old home in Webster Park.

—The dancing class connected with the West Newton English and Classical school, will begin Tuesday, November 15.

—Mr. C. N. Wood, who lately sold his house on Webster street, has purchased a place in Stoneham, where he intends to reside.

-Miss Hattie Avery and the Misses Carpenter sail from Liverpool, Nov. 19, for home, where a warm welcome awaits

-Mr. W. H. Stuart is building a fine house on Hillside avenue, and also two handsome houses on Ash street, Auburndale.

-Mr. Harrey S. Brown, one of our old and respected citizens, leaves this week for Buffalo, N. Y., where he may locate permanently.

There will be preaching and baptismal service at the Baptist Church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. The public are cordially invited.

-Mrs. Richard G. Elkins gave a large and handsome reception to her friends Thursday afternon at her house on Fountain street.

—Mr.O, D. Homer has rented his house to Mr. Luke of Beverly, father of A. F. Luke of this village, and will reside in Boston during the winter.

—Mrs. Elizabeth Price of Crescent street left on Tuesday for New York, where she will spend a month visiting her brothers and sisters.

—Dr. Crockett has moved into his new house, and is getting settled rapidly. He has had it newly papered and painted, and made many other alterations which greatly improve its beauty.

—About a dozen young people celebrated "Hallow e'en" at the house of Miss Mamie Field last Monday evening. That cold, mystic hand was too much even for the steadiest nerves.

—The taxes have been paid in about as largely as last year, in spite of the dearness of money. Treasurer Kenrick has disposed of the $65,000 in 4 per cent bonds at a satisfactory premium.

—Rev. O. D. Kimball occupied the pulpit of the Waltham Baptist Church last Sunday, and read the resignation of the Rev. J. V. Stratton, pastor of the church, which was to take effect at once. —Mr. George Walton had the misfortune to less his purse in Boston, containing between 40 and 50 dollars. Fortunately he was disappointed in not receiving a sum of money due him that day, or his loss would have been much grater.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Unitarian church spent all day Wednesday at an Apron Bee. A basket lunch was served and a good many aprons made for the fair, to be held Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 and 2, in aid of the church. On the latter date, the High School Orchestra will render several selections.

—Next Mouday evening City Hall is engaged by the Prohibitionists, who will furnish a male quartete and a number of speakers, including W. H. Earle, their candidate for governor, Judge Pitman, Volney Cushing of Maine and Rev. O. D. Kimball. The ladies are especially invited.

—President Angell of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals addressed the children of the Pierce School to the number of 225 last Friday afternoon. After an interesting address, leaflets were distributed to the children, and Rev. Mr. Patrick spoke a few works on the subject of kindness to animals. Every day, he said, he had an object lesson from his window, and he had noticed that the kind and considerate teamsters always got up the hill with less trouble to themselves and their horses that those who were brutal.

—The reception of the Educational Club held at the house of Mrs. L. G. Pratt, was a very happy re-union of the old members, with an addition of 25 new ones, the limited number of membership having been increased to 175. There seemed to be renewed interest at the meeting of the Board of Directors, and a determination to make the coming season a brilliant success in point of good speaking, lectures, etc. At the next meeting to be held in the parlors of the Unitarian Church, Nov. 11th, short papers on "Summer Outings" will be given by members of the society. The succeeding one will be a lecture by Mrs. Dr. Bates of Newton Centre, who has recently become a member.

—The Newell Young People's Society

Rev. Mr. Newhall of Auburndale asked the divine blessing. At 7.39 a public meeting was held in the church, which was beautifully decorated. The petted plants were kindly lent by Mr. H. A. Mansfield of Newtonville. The meeting was in charge of E. Dan Fierce, the vice-president. Rev. George S. Butters read an original story, telling of the good that resulted from the formation of a Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. Rev. Mr. Newhall read selections from the Scriptures and offered prayer. The singing by the choir and a male quartet was very fine, being the feature of the evening. "Fight the good fight" was the subject of Mr. G. B. Putnam's address, which closed the formal exercises. A social in the parlors followed.

—The opening services of the Unitarian formal exercises. A social in the parlors followed.

—The opening services of the Unitarian Church last Sunday were very interesting, a large congregation being present. Rev. Mr. Jaynes took for his text the words, "The church of the Living God." The dominant thought in it being, as the stream is made of the riveluts that flow into it, so the church stands for what its individual members make it. He referred in a feeling manner to his ministry among the people, dating back to the time when he first stood among them a student from college, and the unswerving kindness and devotion that had followed him from that time to this. Also to the former pastor who had sowed the seed which he was now reaping, that had made this church so eminently a live, working one, he paid a high tribute. To the building committee that had the difficult task of expending other people's money, he thanked for himself, and all, for the fidelity with which they had fulfilled their task, the result of which was in every way so satisfactory. Rev. Mr. Tiffany, the former pastor, owing to a previous engagement, was unable to be present, but sent a very pleasant congratulatory letter to pastor and people. Miss Munger added greatly to the enjoyment of the services by her very fine singing of the song "Ruth and Naomi." The Sunday school will commence their regular course of study next Sunday taking the "Lives and deeds of the early Hebrews" by Rev. Charles F. Dole, for their subject. The weekly meetings of the teachers will be held in the Ladies Parlor.

the Church of the Messiah for the purpose of Confirmation on next Sunday morning, Nov. 6, the service to begin at 10.45.

—A number of young people celebrated "Hallowe'en" Monday evening, Miss Farley being the hostess. The future was fortoid by mystic ears of corn, with startling truthfulness, judging from present appearances; apples bobbed, and the usual attempts to read the future were made. In addition, horrible stories of ghosts and ghouls, told under trying circumstances, startled the timid.—Rowling at the Newton Boat Club.

trying circumstances, startled the timid.

—Bowling at the Newton Boat Club house promises to be the most attractive and popular amusement of the coming winter for both the old and young people. A large number of bowling parties have been formed, and the janitor assures us that the Club House is engaged for every evening of the winter. The regular bowling season began Nov. 1st. Success seems to crown the efforts of N. B. C.

Benton of Brookline, Mrs. S. E. Fiske, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Harrison of New York, F. R. Cutler and wife, Dexter Lewis of Philadelphia and Mr. Chas. L. Gay of New York. On Wednesday evening, Nov. 2d, the Newton Centre Gun Club enjoyed their annual supper at the hotel.

—A pleasant gathering occurred on Action of the following annual supper at the hotel.

—A pleasant gathering occurred on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 29th, when Miss Florence Harris of Crescent street entertained her friends and classmates, it being her tenth birthday. About forty-five invitations were issued, and nearly all were present. She was the recipient of numerous gifts. A collation was served between 5 and 6 o'clock; in the centre of the table was a birthday cake, surrounded by ten candles, indicating her ten years. The candles were blown out by the hostess and nine special friends. At six they dispersed, after wishing Miss Florence many happy returns, and receiving a bag of confections, as a memento of her 10th birthday.

Y. M. C. A. Anniversary.

The tenth anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Association will be observed Sunday afternoon, Nov. 13, at Eliot Hall, and promises to be an unusally interesting/gathering.

The annual address is to be delivered by F. O. Winslow, the treasurer of the State Associations, whose addresses this mumber were out and the 'program was entertaining and interesting. The special feature of the evening was an original play by Mr. Walter Chaloner, enacted by Mr. And Mrs. Chaloner, Mrs. Pope and Mrs. Joy. It was very bright, full of brilliant flashes of originality and good bits, and was but another scintillation of Mr. Chaloner's versatility as agenius.

—The children of the Universalist parish and Sunday school, had a sociable Thursday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock. A pleasant entertainment was provided, with games, music, etc., and a supper of sandwiches, ice cream, and cake was thoroughly appreciated, after which, each child having snapped the costume cracker, which was on each plate, they had a characteristic march, adorned by

The North Evangelical Sunday School gave a harvest concert last Sunday evening. The decorations, the work of Mr. George Hudson, were noteworthy, a large "Harvest," made of various kinds of vegetables, attracting especial attention. The exercises, under direction of Superintendent Jennison, began at 6.30 with the hymn "There is work for me and there is work for you," followed by a recitation by the young ladies of the school, Miss S. M. Riley sang sweetly "Sowing the Seed," accompanied in the chorus by a male quartet. The Sunday school chorus also rendered a selection, and Rev. Mr. Evans, the pastor, sang a Welsh song in the original language. The pastor made the address of the evening.

The Newtonville Woman's Guild.

The Newtonville Woman's Guild was organized in 1884, for the purpose of uniting all the ladies of Newtonville, without regard to the church they attended, or the neighborhood in which they lived, in charitable work, and in efforts for social intercourse and intellectual progress.

While it was hoped to keep the sympathy of the Guild as broad as possible. making it able to assist any cases of local need, or any established charities brought to its notice, the main object of its work for the first two seasons was the Newton Cottage Hospital, the dining-room of which has been furnished by the Guild, and is under its charge. The room of which has been furnished by the Guild, and is under its charge. The organization has also contributed a considerable sum of money to the Hospital through the Ladies' Aid Association. Many of the members of the Guild having joined the latter association, paying its annual fee, it has been thought expedient to reduce the fee for the Guild from two dollars to one. An additional assessment of twenty five cents will however be made annually to cover the expense of correspondence and printing. The charitable work of the society is directed by three committees, which divide among them the care of the Hospital, of our local poor, and of any public charity that makes appeal; and of adding to the funds of the Guild by taking orders for work to be done by members at their homes, and by sales of useful and fancy articles. Up to the present time the money disbursed by the Guild, for its various beneficials which have received more or less aid, have been Mrs. Caswell's Home at the North End, the Associated Charities through Mrs. Jas. T. Field, the Flower Mission, and the Country Week.

The social and literary part of the work is performed by one committee. While it can hardly be expected, certainly in so short a time, that the literary work of an organization of so broad a scope can compare favorably with that of purely educational clubs, the following list of the lecturers who have addressed it would seem to show, that the members of the Guild, while they have been kept informed of the work there is to do in the world, have not been left without opportunities for some intellectual advancement:

Mrs. Abby Morton Dias, on Women's Clubs; Miss Alice Freeman, Pres, of Wellesley College, on the Claims upon Women; Mrs. E. N. L. Walton, on the Indian Question; Mrs. Knox Heath, on Nursery Education of Children; Mrs. Jas. T. Field, on Associated Charities; Mrs. Jas. T. Field, on Associated Charities; Mrs. Harriet Caswell, on her work at the North End; Miss Mary Dewey, reading of Miss Annie P. Call, of Lasell Seminary, on The organization has also contributed a con

Nile; Prof. Winchester, on Ludlow Castle; Mr. Alexander Young, on Social Satirists; Mr. Theodore Clark, on Plumbing; Mr. Geo. Makepeace Towle, on Dickens, on Victor Hugo, on Carlyle, on Bismarck, and a course of four lectures on Inventions; Mr. Thompson. of Worcester, on The Property Rights of Married Women; Mr. Lindsay, of Boston University, on University Education of Women; the Rev. R. A. White, on Eliza-Fry. Through this lecture the Guild was roused to an active interest in the subject of Matrons in Police Stations.

Mr. Dickinson, Sec'y of Mass. Board of Education, on Industrial Education in the Common Schools; Mr. Geo, Willis Cooke, on Browning; Mr. Edwin D. Mead, on Early Puritanism in England; Mr. E. L. Pierce, of Newtonville, on The Soudan.

The Guild holds its annual reception at the house of Mrs. Geo. T. Hill, on Walnut street, Monday, Nov. 7, from 3 to 5 p. m. It is hoped the attendance of old members will be large, and all ladies intending to join the Guild this season are cordially invited to embrace this opportunity of so doing.

The Treasurer will be in attendance to receive the fee, $1.25, and to furnish tickets of membership in acknowledgment.

Rev. Mr. Tiffany's Lectures.

Rev. Francis Tiffany began his cours of lectures on Venice, in the vestry of the Channing church, Wednesday even-ing, taking for his subject, "The Physi-cal and Historical Problem of the Foundation of the Venetian State." sition of the city at the head of the Adriatic was sketched, and its physical peculiarities treated of. Begun at first as the sea port of cities in the interior, to which the Italians fled at the time of the invasion of the northern Barbarians, tortuous lagoons and rivers affording them a safe refuge, it grew in size and importance until the collection of towns now known by the name of Venice bare-ly escaped destruction at the hands of Pepin about the year 800. The long sandy bar formed where the waters of the sea met the accumulation of sand and gravel washed down from the Alps afforded an excellent harbor, and the in habitants had only to keep their marshy lands well pickled by the salt tides to have a beautiful and salubrious city. The difficulty of forming a united and stable government, where the popula-tion was composed of factions from so many warring cities, and the final solumany warring cities, and the final solution by the nobles taking the power into their own hands, having a Doge who was tied down in every direction by restrictions, was described in Mr. Tiffany's inimitable way, the whole enlivened by flashes of humor which kept the audience on the alert. The lecture closed with the account of the bringing of the body of St Mark to the city, and its influence in furnishing a common cause to arouse the patriotism of the whole city. The lecturer wittily said that-times had changed since then and the possession arouse the patriotism of the whole city. The lecturer wittily said that-times had changed since then and the possession of the bodies of the whole four Evangelists would not do for New York, Boston, or Philadelphia, what St. Mark did for Venice. That was a time when millions were ready to sacrifice themselves for a sentiment, as was done in the Crusades, and for centuries San Marco was the rallying city of Venetians. The secret of their commercial supremacy lay in the one word "monopoly." Whenever they saw a good thing, they seized all of it, and so commanded the market. Salt was the first commodity to interest them, and the Venetian merchant princes soon controlled the salt market of the world. The lecture was full of facts gained both from a long residence in Venice and from a wide reading, and those who were not present missed a great treat. The next lecture will be given next Wednesday evenirg.

BUY YOUR OWN CHERRIES.

It was about three o'clock on a scorching hot Saturday afternoon in July, when John Lewis, the carpenter, laid down his hammer, and putting his hand in his pocket, drew_out a few coppers. "Just the price of a pint," as he said to himself, so he resolved thereupon to step across to the "Golden Eagle," and have some ale to quench his thirst. Just as he opened the door which led to the "Bar," what should he see on the polished counter, but a plate of beautiful ripe cherries, the sight of which made John's mouth water so freely, that ere he knew exactly what he was doing, his hand was stretched out to take a few, when the shrill voice of the landlady from behind called out:"You touch one of them if you dare, holding it to him, she said, "I wish your opinion of it."

"No, thank you, I don't wish any, 'said John; "I want to pay what I owe you: how much is it?"
"Come," said Mrs. Boniface, "its all stuff; take a glass, man, what's your hurry?"
"No, not a drop," said John, "I want to be off."

"No, not a drop," said John, "I want to be off."

"No, not a drop," said John, "I want to be off."

"Well, will you have a glass of some thing short?" said the landlady.

"No, nor long either," said John.

"But," said the landlady, "Tom Smith is in the parlor, and Dick Bates will be here directly; you wan't zo just yet."

"Will you let me know how much I owe you?" said John, getting impatient, "or I shall go without settling."

"Ah, I see now," said the landlady, "that I put my foot in it this afternoon, and offended you; but I hope you won't mind a few words spoken in baste: come, let us be friends once more."

"Not a dram will I take here or any where else, if I know it," said John; "and as to offending me, that don't matter that I see, so long as you get your money."

"But," said the landlady, while she

"But," said the landlady, while she was looking after the P's and Q's (pints and quarts), "I don't like to quarrel with any one, especially with you; now do let us make it up, and as for the cherries, I have kept them for you; see" (fetching them out of the parlor) "here they are."

"No, thank you," said John, with a smile; "I took your advice, and went out and bought some, which were very delicious; and now take what I owe you out of this sovereign—I want to be off."

"I don't like," said the landlady "really to change this without your tasting something; what will you take?" (Throwing a sprat to catch a mackerel, by-the-bye!)

"Nothing, I say again," said John, which we would be the same this work of the same the same this work of the same this work

"I hope," said Mary, trembling, "you haven't done anything wrong to get so much, John?"

"No, my lass," said John, while his heart trembled with emotion, "I have done wrong long enough, and I am going to do right for the future."

"But," said Mary—

"Never mind now," said John, "get your bonnet and shawl, and let us both go to market."

Mary did not need a second order to get ready, all the while wondering how it was to be accounted for; resolving, that she would quietly wait until John thought proper to give her an explanation; so, after bidding Saliy and Tommy take care of the other children and the house, they went on their way. John then briefly told her the decision he had come to, and hoped she would forgive him the past, and help to do better for the time to come; to all of which Mary listened with trembling, yet joyful interest. Their conversation was soon interrupted by their approaching the first place that they should call at, which was the butcher's; who, when he saw them coming together, ceased crying "What will you buy?" for, thought he, "they won't want much; a small joint that everybody else leaves, or some pieces in yonder corner at fourpence a pound will suit them;" so he commenced looking at his stock of meat with his back towards John and Mary.

He was aroused from his reverie by hearing John's voice, "I say, governor, what's this leg of mutton a pound?" and looking round he saw John in the act of handling a piece of meat of that description.

"Yes," said John, "and I hope you sill spend it well."
"I hope," said Mary, trembling, "you aren't done anything wrong to get so nuch. John?"
"No, my lass," said John, while his eart trembled with emotion, "I have one wrong long enough, and I am going of right for the future."
"But," said Mary—
"But," said Mary—
"Nover mind now," said John, "get our bonnet and shawl, and let us both to market."
Mary did not need a second order to et ready, all the while wondering how was to be accounted for; resolving, owever, while she was tying her strings, at she would quietly wait until John nought proper to give her an explanation; so, after bidding Sally and Tommy take care of the other children and the one briefly told her the decision he had me to, and hoped she would forgive in the past, and help to do better for the time to come; to all of which Mary stened with trembling, yet joyful increst. Their conversation was soon intrupted by their approaching the first ace that they should call at, which was the butcher's; who, when he saw them ming together, ceased crying "What"

"I do wish father and mother would come home, "said Sally," suppose a police man was to come and find all these here, what should we do."
"I wonder," said Tommy, "whether ather's going to keep a shop?"
"Don't be silly, Tommy; it would make you still, I know, if we all had to go to prison," said Sally.

In the midst of this dialogue, much to he joy of the children, father and mother would have a share if they were good; and giving them a piece each of the new loaf and a bit of heese, off they were sent to bed, and told to be very quiet. But quietness was out of the question; no sooner were being upstant to take of the morrow's feasting, and their tongues made such a noise that it awoke the other children; and then the down and a wood to the down and a wood the morrow's feasting, and their tongues was out of the question; no sooner were being upstant to take of the morrow's feasting, and their tongues was out of the question; no sooner were one time to in mother to the loot of the sairs, and she said:—

"If you children don't be quiet, you shan't have any pudding to-morrow."

"Pndden, pudden, "said the little ones, what's that?" And again the voice of Tommy was heard telling the others, that down-stairs there were flour and currants, and that on the morrow mother had promised to make them a plum pudding. Of course with this additional piece of news, was it any wonder that their eyes were not much troubled with sleepiness, and that long before the time for getting up had arrived, Tommy was showing them by the aid of a pillow, how big the loaves were, and how mother would make the pudding, and then they wished for the time to arrive when they might experience in reality that "the proof of the pudding is in the eating."

However, the day was at length ushered in, and to the astonished eyes of the children, the whole of the articles displayed; and it can be more easily imagined than described how the day passed away, with so much to talk about, and so manythings to enjoy. And when, in the laternoon while all were seated around the table, mother brought out a plate of nice rosy-ripe cherries, was it any wonder when the children set up a shout of joy, that Mary's heart was too full to contain its emotion?—and that while, the children were making earrings of the cherries, she drew close to John, and kissed him quietly, the tears trinkling down her cheeks the meanwhile, she whispered in his ear, "we may be happy yet."

And so it was; for in a short time John found that he could buy clothes for his children, and then for himself and wife; and then it began to be whispered that he was getting proud, for he moved into a better neighborhood, where he only had to pay about the same rent, nevertheless. And soon after he began putting by his savings in the Building Society, and this enabled him to build a cottage for himself. Meantime the master, finding him more than ever attentive to his work, appointed him as foreman, at an advanced rate of wages; and somehow John used t Section of the control of the contro

ANNIVERSARY THOUGTS.

AN A DDRESS, DELIVERED BY THE REV GEO.W. SHINN, D. D., IN GRACE CHURCH,

It gives me great pleasure to be able to of him, and to let him do his best. They are not disappointed because he does not combine in himself all the good qualities of all the angelic best, but they are determined that he shall have a fair field, and honest encouragement in his work.

AN A DDRESS, DELIVERED BY THE REYORO, W. SHINN, D. D., IN GRACE CHURCH, NEWYON, SUNDAY MORNING, OCT. 30.

Loome before you this morning with neither text nor sermon. I do not know just what I call this production. If we would sound rather too formal to suit what I have to say.

If I were to speak of it as "Some Personal Reminiscences,"it would seem as if I were claiming the privilege of the elders; for we not begin to listen to peole's reminiscences until they get to the other side of 50 years at least.

The best title I can think of, if it must have a title, is: "Thoughts Suggested by an Anniversary."

I was quite startled recently as counted up the years and found that Oct. 30, 1887, would be the 25th anniversary of my ordination to the ministry. It came to me almost as a shock when I repeated to myself "A Quarter of a Century." For so raphily have the years gone that I can scarcely persuade myself even now that it has been twently five years since I received "authority to exceute the office of a deacon in the Church of God."

But the time has gone, and the distance between October 30th, 1862, and October 30th, 1862, and October 30th, 187, is a quarter of a century.

And so it set me to thinking, and And so it set me to thinking, and First of all, I have asked myself what is my estimate of this profession, which I entered twenty-five years ago?

If I had my life to live over again would I become a clerzyman?

§ Reviewing its trials and hardships, is here any other calling t would delicated the area of the profession which I can say with all honesty that I have not been a better once.

The choice of other callings was before me at once time, and in fact it seems of the company of the fact that I was led finally to select a profession which I can not time, and in fact it seems of the profession which I can not time, and the other calling to which a company of the fact that the ministry is sought now young men, while the other contents and infact its seems of the profession which I can be the contents of the cou

It may be permitted us in another world to see what is now hidden from satisfaction and happiness.

It gives me great pleasure to be able to make this statement to-day, in view of the fact that the ministry is sought now by so few young men, while the other professions, and especially while business avocations are so overrowded.

The smallness of the number of those who are offered for the ministry is illustrated by the fact that this congregation after being in existence for over 30 years has furnished only two clergymen out of the many of its young men who have grown up here grown up here grown and here are grown and here shall be a state of Christ's kingdom, able to educate their sons, living in the midst of the most favorable educational privileges, should have a succession of its young members always on the list of candidates for the ministry.

It ought to be the case that every year our interest should be concentrated upon some one for whom we could pray, and who would be in an important sense the representative of the congregation.

As fast as one was ordained and sent of this chosen work, some one else should be ready to take his place as a candidate.

If it is the same of the congregation and adequate support—then it is necessary to repeat the old truth that while other callings are honorable, and while in any honest avocation men may serve the Lord, yet here is a profession which is full of satisfactions to any one who hones are more one claims that it offers the pecuniary returns which may be had in other callings are honorable, and while in any honest avocation when may serve the Lord's work he will be sustained.

So far as temporal support is concerned no one claims that it offers the pecuniary returns which may be had in other callings are honorable, and while in any honest avocation men may serve the Lord's work he will be sustained.

So far as temporal support is concerned no one claims that it offers the pecuniary returns which may be had in other callings are honorable, and while in any honest avocation men may serve the Lord's work he will be sustained.

So far short falents I had in the service of His Church. Another thought which has come to me is how patient and how sympathete have been the great majority of the to do throughout this period.

The antagonisms I have created, the censures I have received, and the indifference over which I have groaned, have made me all the more appreciative of the very great kindness which has been so general.

It has been a blessed satisfaction to know that some have prayed for my success, that others have seconded my efforts, that many have been patient towards my binners, and that the towards my binners, and that the plant of the towards and the state of the towards and the state of the towards my binners, and that the state of the towards and the state of the towards my binners, and the time of the towards my binners, and that the state of the towards my binners, and that the state of the towards my binners, and that the towards my binners, and that the plant of the towards my binners, and that the state of the ministers. THE LATE SETH BEMIS.

[Boston saturday Evening Gazette.] A valued friend, and also a railroad man of forty years' experience, has re-quested me to write for the Gazette what know about the late Seth Bemis.

It so happened that Mr. Bemis, though a few years my senior, was a native of the town in which I first saw the light; a town that within the past two hundred years has given to history the names of many noted men, to say nothing about its record during the most troublous times preceding and during the Revolu-

Among all the families who then distinguished themselves, and who, later on, made Watertown famous in the annals of business and politics, none stood higher than that of the Bemises. They were among the first to appreciate and take advantage of the water power on the Charles River, then the most important stream in Massachusetts, and the name of Bemis will always be associated with its improvements.

But it is with Seth Bemis I have to deal. Though as one counts years, he was about the youngest of the men who, fifty or more years ago, saw the future of our manufacturing and railroad in-terests, he took a leading part in di-recting the policy of both. Early associated in a practical way with manufac-turing, he dovoted his time to develop-ing improvements in the several departments of machinery, etc. What added to the value of his advice was the thor-ough knowledge he acquired by several years of travel in England and on the Continent, which afforded him rare op-portunities to study systems abroad and compare them with ours; he never failed compare them with ours; he never failed to bring some new idea into our manufacturing system, and which to-day, through such effort, is the best in the world.

As a railroad man, I call to mind no one living who did so much in his day to perfect our railroad system as Seth Bemis.

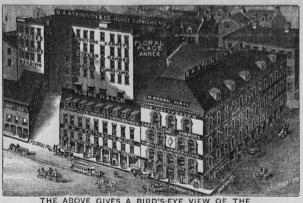

As a railroad man, I call to mind no one living who did so much in his day to perfect our railroad system as Seth Bemis.

He was one of the most enthusiastic of the stockholders of the old Boston & Worcester, the Western and the Fitchburg railroads, and he was senior director of the latter at the time of his death. Many errors of omission and commission might have been avoided in the management of the first two named corporations had Mr. Bemis, Israel Lombard and Josiah Stickney been supported by the stockholders. But his great interest centered in the Fitchburg, and for many reasons. He lived on the first-proposed line of the road, which should have been adopted. He was in favor of the Watertown branch, which was opposed by Swift and his other directors, and but for him, this valuable franchise would years ago have passed into the hands of the Boston & Albany. He was in favor of buying the franchise of the Grand Junction railroad nearly forty years ago, but he was overruled. That franchise in the hands of the Fitchburg Railroad would have given that road the whole north shore of of our harbor, and rendered every other railroad leading to the West a dependent. He opposed the selling of the Lexington and West Cambridge branch to the Lowell Railroad, and had his counsels prevailed the great combination of the Boston & Maine Railroad to-day would not exist. Had his advice been followed, the Western Railroad at one time, previous to its consolidation with the Boston & Worcester, would have found a tide water terminus over the tracks of the Fitchburg. Had his counsel prevailed, the Massachusetts Central, instead of being an opposing line, would have been a feeder to the Fitchburg.

The above are some of the reasons I have for saying that Seth Bemis was one of the clearest headed railroad men of the State. He has passed away, but what he wanted to do will forever be a reminder of lost opportunities. He once remarked to me: "One time it was in the power of the Fitchburg. One-half the money it has spent within a year t —Newton Upper Falls and Highlands people will be somewhat interested in following the career of Clarence Barton, who still figures in life's history. We are sorry that the desperate efforts made to fill his pockets with cash to enable him to reach Denver, Col., has not yet been successful in landing him there, or at Concord. The following was taken from Boston Herald for Oct. 26, in a despatch from Foxboro, Mass: "A party who gave his name as Barton, has been soliciting funds in this town for the purpose of paying his passage to Denver, Col., which he claimed was his home. He claimed to have been sick and to be without funds. He visited a prominent manufacturer, and was recognized as a party named Dodd, who had been arrested for thieving, and who had been working country places for funds to get home for five years. He had obtained but little, and the officers who arrested him allowed him to go, provided he would leave town at once, which he did.

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—The rector of St. Mary's was absent this week on missionary duty in Am-herst and Northampton.

—Bishop Paddoek is expected to make his annual visitation to St. Mary's parish on the morning of Sunday, Nov. 13.

—The result of the supper and sale held by the ladies of St. Mary's was very satisfactory. The proceeds amounted to over 890. It is proposed to use this towards providing better gas fixtures in the church.

—Service was held at St. Mary's on the morning of All Saints' day. The Holy Communion was celebrated after morning prayer, a good number being present. The altar was filled with white chrysanthemums, offered in memory of dear ones who had departed curing the year. After the service the flowers were placed upon the graves in the churchyard.

—Now that the new station is approaching completion and much is being done in grading the sides of the road from Pine Grove, it is hoped that the dangers of the Concord street crossing will not be forgotten. If it is necessary, a petition can be easily filled with the names of those who daily realize the constant danger of disaster. Those who take the cars at Pine Grove indulge also a hope that something in the way of shelter may be provided at the station. Ladies find it very disagreeable during a driving storm.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

BETTER CHRISTIAN WORK.

The great Mass Meeting of nearly three thousand pastors, superintendents, teachers and Sunday School workers from all over New England was held in Tremont Temple, Tuesday. Nov. 1st, from till 9,30 p.m. It was undenominational, the purpose of the meeting being to bring together this large number of workers, "To be stimulated, encouraged and taught by our great national leaders, and so better fitted for Christian work."

The opening address was given by Rev. Dr. Peloubet: "The Teacher with his He commenced by asking the question: "Why am I going to my class?" and answered that the fundamental aim should be to make each one a Christian and fit them for heaven. "Am I prepared? Have I a distinct idea of what and how I am going to teach?" But perhaps you answer, "I haven't time for preparation." "No man has any right to live, who doesn't spend some time in religious meditation; can't be spend a religious meditation; can't he spend a portion of it on the Sunday School lesson? No person ever concentrated a whole week's meditation on any portio of the Bible without being educated, and spiritually helped.

In the lesson teaching, too much time is often spent in discussions, locating is attested by scientific facts. Miracles are possible, they are probable, therefore certain.

Rev. Dr. Schauffler then spoke on "How to study the Lesson." His talk was full of helpful, common sense suggestions for the teacher. Take any lesson. 1. Who—were the writer, speakers, those addressed originally, in fact the actors. 2. What—did he say, do, the people do—the events. 3. What then—these people did or said as follows, what then:practical application for those times. 4. What then—for us of modern times. What for each individual member in your class. You will never teach your lesson well, without specifying in your mind what your scholars, and if possible each one needs in that lesson.

Get illustrations, they are an amazing help, but don't lug them in. Look for them in your daily life, those are the best ones.

them in your daily life, those are the best ones.

B. F. Jacobs of Chicago gave an address on "The Purpose and Plans of International Work." He is all on fire and full of enthusiasm, believing there is no greater work on earth, than caring for children. The first field is the home, but the Christian heart that would work for Him anywhere, would work for Him everywhere. Denominations need to nnite, and all help in the work. The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few." "Freely ye have received, freely give," ers are few, "Freely ye have received, freely give."

The singing during the afternoon was by the audience, under the leadership of Prof. W. F. Sherwin. Atter the addresses, the time from 4.30 to 7 o'clock was spent in social intercourse, partaking in three detachments of the bountiful supper, etc., etc.

spent in social intercourse, partaking in three detachments of the bountiful supper, etc., etc.

Everything was admirably planned and carried out, and great credit is due Mr. Hartshorn, who was the originator of the whole plan.

In the evening Rev. Dr. John Hall delivered the opening address on "The Sunday School." He commenced by saying "Now I am going to tell you just where I stand to begin with. I believe the Old Testament to be essential to an understanding of the New. The Old and New are one, and meant to go together." There are certain dangers to which Sunday School workers are liable. 1. Of being taken as substitutes for the parents. You are their helpers, not to take their place in religious instruction. 2. Of the Sunday School being made the substitute for the church. 3. Of neglecting earnest study of the Scriptures for your own spiritual help, in giving all your time to careful preparation for your lesson. 4. Of substituting Christian activity in Sunday School work, for personal growth in Christ.

d. Of substituting Christian activity in Sunday School work, for personal growth in Christ.

He also spoke of the dangers of the times, "What are you to do? Magnify the truth to the best of your ability." If we want to make men good, the best thing we can do, is to lift up Christ, and beseech, implore and persuade them to come to Him and accept Him. We are inclined to bring in additions, thinking to make our churches more attractive. Here is the attraction: "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me."

Dr. Schauffler followed. "If we had seen the miracles, we should have no trouble in interesting our scholars. We have not seen them, how then can we tell them so as to interest and fascinate them? By what I call a Religious Use of the Imagination." But space forbids my dwelling upon the address, let one sentence suffice: "Set down and think on the lesson story. Think and think until you see it yourself, live in the circumstances, and when have done that, I defy anybody to come before the class in a half-hearted way."

Mr. Jacobs closed the evening's lecture on "Some Methods of Work and Study. "How shall we reach the masses?" Step a little nearer to them. Appreciate the value of one boy or man, and we will not be discouraged because we have to waste all our energies on two or three or half a dozen little tow-heads. Let us remember the possibilities in each individual.

Teach, don't preach. Don't get full of information, and then go prepared to pour it in.

Christ called us to be Fishers of Men. You have got to study your boy, in order to know how to get him.

Christ called us to be Fishers of Men. You have got to study your boy, in order to know how to get him.

The Ruggles Street quartet sang four times during the evening, and telegraphic greetings were received from Dwight L. Moody and Rev. John Broadus, D. D. Surely no one that attended could fail to be helped and strengthened for the Master's work, as well as more than ever to realize the scope and responsibility of it.

High School Lyceum.

High School Lyceum.

An audience numbering two hundred and fifty, and composed of pupils of the high school, alumni and parents, listened to the exercises of N. H. S. Lyceum on Saturday evening. The old first class room was crowded, and those present seemed to enjoy the exercises. The musical program was especially fine, being one of the best ever given at the Lyceum. It consisted of a piano duet by Misses Solis and Sawin, a cornet solo by Arthur Plummer and a vocal solo, "The Postillion," by Miss Newell. Miss Newell's voice is very smooth, clear and flexible. The debate, on the pardoning power of the executive, was led by Mr. Greene for the ministry and Mr. Pierce for the opposition. Several of the alumni and Messrs. Coolidge and Morton also spoke. The latter came as a representative of the Cambridge Latin School to propose a joint debate. This matter was referred to the executive committee. The debate was tame, but, as a whole, the meeting to the executive committee. The debate was tame, but, as a whole, the meeting was a great success, and the future of was a great success, and the Lyceum is very bright.

The subject was "The Human Washington," "and although," said the speaker, "Washington was not super-human, but human, the more we learn of his character the more we find to admire in it." The attendance was large, considering the state of the weather. The second lecture will occur a month hence and will be entitled, "The Puritan Exodus," by Prof. John Fiske; the third of the series, "The Outbreak of the Civil War," by Col. T. W. Higginson, and the last lecture, by Rev. F. H. Hornbrook, on "Count Tolstoi," will occur Feb. 23rd.

Grand Concert and Readings in Eliot Hall.

With the view of completing the fund to be raised before the consecration of Grace church, Mr. Petersilea has under-taken a magnificent entertainment in which he is to have the assistance of a remarkable array of talent

His own ability as a pianist, as well as that of Mrs. Petersilea and Mr. Milo Benedict, are everywhere known. Three new features will be added. One is the singing by a quartet of ladies favorably singing by a quartet of ladies favorably know as the Scandinavian quartet. Each one of the singers is a soloist and there will be therefore in addition to the quartet selections some beautiful Swedish and other ballads. A new pianist will appear, Miss Howard, a pupil and graduate of the Petersilea Academy. She has obtained a fine reputation in the west. Last of all but with singular claims to popular favor is Mr. Henry Dixon Jones. He has been for some years the instructor in elocution at Havard University, and supported Mr. Lawrence Barrett on the stage. Mr. Jones will read among other things Artemus Ward's London Lecture. There is already a great demand for tickets.

The Newton Y. M. C. A. will celebrate its tenth anniversary next Sunday after-noon in Eliot Hall. This association, which holds such largely attended meetings, had its beginning in a very small way. Ten years ago, Dr. Jones, a blind physician who will be remembered by way. Ten years ago, Dr. Jones, a blind physician who will be remembered by many in this city, recognized the need of some religious exercises in the afternoon to fill the gap between the regular morning and evening services of the churches. To this end he consulted Mr. Frank Bacon, and it was in the latter's summer house that the association was first considered. Four gentlemen met at Dr. Jones's house, and at an adjourned meeting a week later Mr. Geo. C. Dunn, who was a member of the Boston Y. M. C. A., proposed the establishment of an association in Newton. The idea was favorably received, and at a well attended meeeting in Eliot Lower Hall, Mr. George S. Harwood was elected President and Mr. Geo. S. Trowbridge Secretary. The second president was Mr. G. D. Gilman, who served three years and was followed by Mr. H. J. Woods, three years, and Mr. Chas, W. Snow, two years. Mr. Robert F. Cummings, the present incumbent, has recently entered on a second term. This association has done and is doing a good work, being a feeder for the churches and offering an opportunity to attend a religious service to those who cannot do so in the morning. The meeting Sunday afternoon will be full of interest, and the attendance will, no doubt, be very large.

High School Notes.

Foot ball-Last Friday afternoon the High School eleven defeated the Boston English High School eleven by a score of English High School eleven by a society 25 to 8. Saturday afternoon the Newton boys were defeated by the Cambridge High School eleven, the score being 22 to 0. Monday afternoon '88 played with '91 in more ways than one, the score being 46 to 0 in '88's favor.

The Newton High School Chorus has begun it second year of organization with promise of great success. The membership has been raised to the number of seventy-five, and great interest is shown by the members. It if desired by the officers to make the membership list still larger, and therefore they desire to call the attention of scholars and alumni to the organization. The admission fee is orly one dollar for the whole year, and there are no assessments. Rehearsals are held every Tuesday evening in the school building at Newtonville. Applications for membership should be forwarded to Albert W. Little, Sec'y., Auburndale, Mass.

A short literary and musical program had been provided. At eight o'clock Commander Sylvester called the company to order, when the Amphion Quartet rendered a fine selection. Then the commander spoke of the effort being made to organize a Woman's Relief Corps, and after an informal discussion of the needs of such a corps it was voted that the ladies meet at the residence of Mrs. Mary E. Bates, M. D., for further discussion; a cornet solo by Arthur Plummer came next, and a reading by Prof. J. B. Taylor of selections from Little Emly and David Copperfield closed the program. At this time all were invited to the banquet room, where a collation had been provided and where the social feature of the evening was at its height, if one could judge by the merry pe als of laughter and the incessant rattle of conversation. Short-Hand and Type-Writing

Short-Hand and Type-Writing.

The School Board has been considering the advisability of introducing this very desirable branch of study into the evening schools, and have debated several propositions that were sent to them by Mr. S. G. Greenwood, Principal and Proprietor of the New England School of Short-hand, Pemberton Square, Boston, and have been obliged to decide that in view of the small appropriation allowed them for evening school purposes and the doubt as to how many would take up the study, they felt that it would be inexpedient to incur any expense, but they have granted Mr. Greenwood the use of a room in the Bigelow Building, and he therefore invites all who are interested in taking up the study of Shorthand and Type-writing to meet him there on Tuesday evening Nov. 15th, at 7 o'clock. MESSAGE FROM MAYOR KIMBALL.

MESSAGE FROM MAYOR KIMBALL.

Mayor Kimball read the following message in regard to the dust nuisance: To the City Council:

The absence of the usual fall of rain in October and to the present time, has caused an accumulation of dust in our streets, which has been blown about in great clouds to the discomfort of every one out of doors, and to the loss of a great amount of surface materal. These reasons are of such importance as to justify the recommendation that immediate steps be taken to remedy the evil. The expense involved cannot be large, and it will be my pleasure to approve such appropriation therefor, as your judgment may indicate.

J. WESLEY KIMBALL Mayor.

Mayor.

Alderman Grant reported an order on the subject, that the Highway committee be authorized to sprinkle the streets which have been sprinkled this summer for such further time as may be deemed necessary. The order was passed and now goes to the Common Council. THE ELECTRIC LIGHT STATION.

now goes to the Common Council.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT STATION.

A hearing was then given on the petition of the Newton Electric Light and Power company to put in another engine and boiler, so that the total capacity of their engines and boilers should be 200 horse power.

Mr. H. B. Parker, president of the company appeared and said that the only reason the company asked for the increase was that at present they had only one boiler, and if any accident should happen to that both Newton and Watertown would be put to great inconvenience. They wished for an additional engine for the same reason.

Attorney Sanford H. Dudley of Boston appeared for Matthew Burns, and said that there was only 12 feet between the Electric light building and the house of his client, and the family strongly objected to having another engine put in, as the noise and discomfort caused by the present one was almost unbearable. The company have now two engines, more than their license allows them. Last summer, Mr. Burns and his wife were both ill a good deal of the time and unable to obtain any sleep from the noise and jar made by the machinery. They have two daughters also living at home, who work during the day and are prevented from sleeping at night by the noise. One of them was ill for several weeks last summer, and the noise aggravated her illness. It was a very hard case, when the company could have put their building anywhere in the city, where it would have caused no one any inconvenience, but yet they had chosen to locate it right by the side of Mr. Burns home and render it almost uninhabitable. Shall a corporation compel this family to home and render it almost uninhabitable. Shall a corporation compel this family to Shall a corporation compel this family to suffer.

John and Thomas Stanley appeared as witnesses and testified to the disturbance caused by the machinery.

Matthew Burns and his daughters, Misses Kate and Jennie Burns, Wm. Ahearn and John Mullen also appeared and testified, in accordance with Mr. Dudley's statements.

Mr. Dudley's statements.

Mr. Dudley stated that the matter had already been in court, and Mr. Justice Holmes had decided that the trouble was not sufficient to authorize him to grant an injunction, but that was really a drawn battle, and did not affect the other two suits which had been begun by Mr. Burns against the company, and which would come to trial next month.

The hearing was then closed and the petition was laid on the table, to see if some amicable arrangement could not be made by the two parties.

OTHER MATTERS.

Mr. Chester Graves petitioned for a concrete sidewalk; referred to Highway committee.

J. H. Williams was granted a license to move a small building from Washington Park to Washington street.

John Leahy was granted a license to move a building from Pearl to Gardner street.

A. Muldoon and others asked for a street lamp on Carlyle street, near residence of B. Marshail.

The board then adjourned.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

LARGELY INCREASED ESTIMATES FOR THE COMING YEAR.

The board of Alderman met on Monday evening, Mayor Kimball presiding and all the members present. The reading of the records was dispensed with and the two election officers appointed at the last meeting were confirmed.

Alderman Johnson presented the petition of Joseph Lee, for license to erect a building to be used for a billiard and pool rooms, and a bowling alley, for the use of the guests of the Woodland Park Hotel; referred to the license committee.

An order was passed making the compensation of election officers the sam

as last year.

Luther Paul presented a remonstrance Entirer Path presented a remoistrance against the granting of a license to G. H. Ellis, to build a stable on Centre street, opposite his building lot, and in front of his dwelling, and asked that the board reconsider the matter and not have a nuisance on one of the main streets of the city; also that the stables should be built in the rear of the lot.

Alderman Johnson said that he did not see how the stable could be a nuisance there. He had conferred with ex-Alderman Mason, who had assured him that it was all vacant land in that vicinity, and had shown him a plan of the land.
Alderman Ward said that he had a talk with Mr. Ellis, and he had said there were no buildings near the site of the proposed stable, Mr. Paul's house was some distance away.

Alderman Hollis said it might be proper to refer the matter to the board of health, and see what they may consider a nuisance.

Alderman Grant said that the barn was evidently not a nuisance now, although it may become one at some future time. and therefore it did not come under the province of the board of health. The communication was referred to the license committee.

CHARGED TO NEXT YEAR.

Alderman Grant reported an order appropriating $5,550, to be charged to next years assessment of taxes, 5,000 of the amount to be added to the miscellane-the amount to be added to the miscellaneous fund; $250 to the appropriation for watering the streets, and $300 to the account of stationery and printing.

Alderman Grant explained that the miscellaneous appropriation was exhausted and also that for stationery and printing, while there was a debt of $250 for street watering. The election expenses would have to be paid out of the miscellaneous fund. The order was passed, all voting in favor.

Alderman Hollis reported an order for the erection of a street lamp on Emerson street, in response to the petition of M. C. Rich and others. The order was passed.

the erection of a street lamp on Emerson street, in response to the petition of M. C. Rich and others. The order was passed.

Alderman Pettee reported an order granting the free use of the City Hall for the entertainment to be given Dec. 7th. 1887, for the benefit of the fund of the Firemeu's Relief Association, passed.

Residents of Ward 4 petitioned for the location of a fire alarm signal station on Lexington street, between River street and Auburndale Avenue; referred to the fire committee.

Alderman Pettee presented an order authorizing the water board to put up 46 new hydrants, at a cost not to exceed $4,175, the same to be charged to the water construction account. He explained that it would render the fire department far more efficient and the hydrants would last many years; they would be much cheaper than hose, because hose would wear out, and must be replaced. It was good economy to put in as many hydrants as could reasonably be put in. The order was passed.

Alderman Pettee reported an order that $243,15 be paid to Amasa Crafts the amount of money he had paid with interest, for a certain parcel of land sold for taxes. The land in question was granted to the city for educational purposes, with the provision that it should always be used for such purposes, and be surrounded by a fence. The school house formerly on the land had been moved away many years ago, before Newton became a city, and the town assessors assuming that the land thereby reverted to the Winchester heirs, had assessed the land to them. The taxes not being paid, it was sold to Mr. Crafts, and a tax-title given him. The question was whether the assessors had any right to tax the land, as it belonged to the city, and the Winchester heirs had taken no steps to secure it. Mr. Crafts, and a tax-title given him. The question was whether the assessors has been before the committee on claims some three years ago, and it was recommended then that Mr. Crafts be repaid the money he had expended, with 10 per cent interest, the amount allowed by the the money he had expended, with 10 pecent interest, the amount allowed by th statutes. But he had no legal claim of the city and 6 per cent interest was fair return. If the Winchester heirs di not take steps within 21 years for th recovery of the land they would be barre by the statute of limitations. They wer scattered from Maine to California an so it was impossible to get them all t sign off. The 21 years would soon expire if it had not done so already, and the the city would have a valid title to the land.

Alderman Grant said that the land really belonged to the city and Mr. Crafts had no legal claim to it, but the city was certainly bound in equity to re-imburse him for the money he had expended, and a fair rate of interest.

The order was then passed, Mayor Kimball stating that it was understood that the 21 years had already passed.

George Rice gave notice of his intention to erect a dwelling house in Ward 6.

ESTIMATES FOR NEXT YEAR.

Alderman Grant presented the report of the committee on finance, the estimates for receipts and expenditures for next year, and comparing them with the appropriation for this year. They are given in full in another column.

The board then adjourned to Tuesday evening, Nov. 8th, at 7 p. m.

"The main difficulty about Webster's Dictionary," says the book reviewer of the Charlestown News and Courier, "is to know what to say of it," The reviewer might at least have given Webster a rap for skipping from subject to subject so abruptly, and for his apparent wantof continuity of thought.—|Atlanta Consti-

RT needle-work and valuable embroideries are frequently ruined, A or their beauty much impaired by washing them with ordinary soap, which is too rank for such delicate articles. A simple, and the proper method is to make suds of hot water and IVORY SOAP, and allow to cool till lukewarm. This solution, while very effective, is perfectly harmless.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'lvory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it. Copyright 1886, by Procter & Gamble.

Every effort of the mind or movement of a muscle involves the expenditure or waste of nervous energy and vitality, in proportion to the magnitude of the effort; these wasted products pass off with effects substances from the body, while recuperation is effected by nutrition. Pure Wheat Meal Contains More Life Sustaining Properties Than any Other Food.

The history of the Roman Empire in the time of Julius Cassar shows that wheat, as an article of food, combined with fresh out-door air life, is capable of producing and sustaining the highest type of physical manhood the world ever saw. The empire was built up and maintained by soldiers whose main article of food was wheat.

Dogs fed by Magendie (vide Kirks & Paget's Physiology) on four, died in forty days; other dogs fed on wheat meal bread flourished and throve. The three-fourths impoverishment of the mineral ingredients proved fatal to the first. Why should mankind suffer from living on impoverished food as they do?

In the food as they do?

Laboring men county upon flour will, if they use the Arlington Wheat Meal, find their expenses in this department diminished three-fourths. The Wheat Meal will go further and give four imes as much untriment as an equal amount of flour.

Laboring men can do their work with less exhaustion, because it contains more Sustaining Forces than any other food.

It is a natural food for every Brain Worker, containing the necessary Elements to strengthen the Brain.

Children who feed on this need never be troubled with Cholera Infantum which destroys so many children.

Anny Cases of Dyspepsia of long duration, have been cured by eating Wheat Meal, and it is A PONITIVE CURE FORE ONNSTIPATION.

The Arlington Wheat Heal Has Berns On THE MAKKET FOR THE PAST IZ YEARS, BEARING THE HIGHEST REPUTATION. Being ground from the best pure wheat, it furnishes to the public the means of supplying a PERFECT FOOD. Its quality as it leaves the Arlington Mills is guaranteed to be of a superlative excellence and purity. Beware of imitations. Ask your grocer for it, and take no other. The Reverent Treatment of the Dead.

While in theory most people will agree that the remains of the dead should be treated with all possible respect, it is a question if there are not some usages still tolerated which are very suggestive

One of these is the exposure of the coffined body to the gaze of a company gathered in a house or a church, or worse still, in glaring open daylight at the cemetery.

In some churches it is positively forbidden to remove the casket lid after the burial service begins, or to have pro-cessions walking up to take a last look at the tace of the departed.

Many people are beginning to question whether it is well under any circum-stances to have this public exposure of emaciated and often distorted faces to public gaze.

stances to have this public exposure of emaciated and often distorted faces to public gaze.

If people are moved by morbid curiosity surely that is not worthy of gratification, and no facility should be afforded.

Many however, think that it is a way of testifying respect and affection for the deceased person. Would it not be more respectful to try and remember the person as he was in health? Is it kindly to think as much of the perishing body—and so little of the soul which cannot perish? The man's very self is not there in his coffin, that has departed. What is left behind is but the outer covering in which his very self once lived.

But beside all this, as we should protect, our dead from insult, so should we not permit needless exposure to the gaze of mere curiosity or mistaken sentiment. We are their protectors, and it is probable if the silent lips could speak they would beg us not to subject the disease wasted remains to public inspection.

No one now can think complaisantly of disease wasted remains to public inspection.

No one now can think complaisantly of such a future exhibition of himself, and it certainly lends a new pang to death, when one reflects that upon the demands of a foolish custom they who should protect him when dead as they did when living may yield.

When the body is placed in the casket let the family and those very near to the deceased person take their farewell look if they wish to. After that close the casket and forbid its being opened to gratify anyone's morbid curiosity, or anyone's equally morbid because mistaken affection.

REFORMER.

The McCluskey Inquest.

There have been so many conflicting stories in regard to the fatal accident to Peter McCluskey at Newtonville, that the following finding at the inquest will be of interest. The court found that Peter McCluskey came to his death Oct. 20th in consequence of being run over by the cars of the Boston & Albany railroad. It appeared in evidence that the deceased was a man of intemperate habits; that early on the morning of Oct. 20 he left his home in West Newton, and having procured from his em-ployers a small sum of money, went to Boston. He left Boston to return on the 9.15 a. m. train, having in his possession a small bottle of whiskey, and occupied a seat in the smoking car near the rear entrance. When the train had arrived at Newtonville passengers left, and after it had started up again the brakeman entered and announced, "Next station, West Newton." He then crossed the platform and made the same announcement in the next car. A gentleman who sat in the smoking-car in the seat abreast of the deceased, observed that at that moment the decased, who had been very quiet until that time, rose hurriedly and passed towards the rear door. Fearing by his manner that he was about to get off—the train being then under considerable headway—and hearing someone say "Don't let that man get off," he followed him, and, finding him on the lower step, he took hold of the back of his coat collar; at the same time the brakeman returned to his post on the platform, and, stepping on the steps of the following car, reached for the deceased but could not get hold of him. McCluskey wrenched himself from the gentleman's grasp and fell on the pavement where the track crosses Walnut street at grade. One car passed him without touching him. He then turned over (probably in an effort to rise), and threw his legs beneath the next car, which passed over both legs. The brakeman pulled the signal rope and the train was stopped. The conductor repaired to the wounded man and found that persons had charge of him and were calling for a "bearer." As a number of passengers had got off to see what was the matter, and as an express train would soon follow on the same track, he called "All aboard," and signalled to proceed. This was his seventh stop and he had to make two more and to be out of the way of the express train, which made but one stop. There can be no question that the deceased was somewhat dazed while in the car, and hearing only the last words of the announcement, "Next Newton." supposed he was leaving his destination, West Newton, and thurried to get off, and thus met with the disaster. He was taken to the Cottage hospital, about two miles distant, and there died. The court finds that no blame attaches to any person.

The Latest Craze.

Boston has brought forth a new craze. Russomania succeeds Anglomania. There is not a whisper remaining of the "Shel ley prattle." Browning clubs have lost their novelty, and for those who desire something new and strange, no better opportunity is offered than the pursuit of opportunity is offered than the pursain of Russian subjects. The indications of the movement, writes a correspondent to the Mail and Express, are varied. In one of the reception rooms of a fashionable importer's large dress making establishment a huge brass samovar is the chief ornament, occuying a central position in the room, and of such a hospitable size that all the callers for a day might be cheered by the teain its urn. As a mark of his distinguished confidence the importer exhibits to a few some Russian gowns of the genuine peasant style to be worn at afternoon teas, and later in the lawn tennis. The skirt of this quaint costume is dark blue cotton, richly embroidered around the bottom in red and white. The loose blue waist and large sleeves are heavily trimmed with embroidery, and a long, narrow apron which extends from the belt to the bottom of the skirt is also gay with the red and white pattern. When a young American girl with fair hair and blue eyes presides Russian subjects. The indications of the

at the samovar in one of these brilliant gowns the afternoon teas will be of a unique character, fully as brilliant as some of the receptions given last winter to some Japanese visitors, at which Japanese and American flags and Japanese exarfs, screens and brica-a-brac made private parlors far more Oriental than Bostonian. "I would give anything in the world if I knew Russian," was the sigh of a Boston woman of some import to those who watch carefully the social drift of opinion. A club on the Back Bay is already formed for the study of Russian literature, especially the novels, and other clubs are receiving instruction through papers which all Bostonians who have travelled in Russia either have prepared or are preparing. prepared or are preparing.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

TO PREPARE COLD TURKEY.

Chop one cupful of roast turkey, add half the quantity of bread crumbs, season to taste, add the gravy, if any, add sufficient hot water and butter to make very moist; put into small round dishes, break an egg on the top of each, sprinkle with salt and place in the oven until the egg is firm; serve while hot.

BAKED OYSTERS.

Put a round of toasted bread into a cup, spread with butter and fill the cup up with oysters; season with salt, pepper and a pinch of sage and butter; fill as many cups as will be required for a meal; place them in a baking pan in the oven, cover with a pan and bake about 10 minutes or until the oysters are plump.

CAULIFLOWER SOUP. Heat one pint of chicken or veal broth, one pint of milk and half a cup of cream; when boiling, thicken with one tablespoonful of flour, add salt and white pepper to taste; cook one half a head of cauliflower in salted water 20 minutes, cut off the stock when done, chop the flower part fine and add to the broth; serve with toasted crackers.

CLAM FRITTERS.

Two eggs, one half a cnp of clam li-quor, one tablespoonful of olive oil, one saltspoon of salt, one half a saltspoon of pepper, three fourths of a cupful of flour pepper, three fourths of a cupin of hour. Select large clams, drain from the liquor and use the liquor to make the batter. Cutaway the black end, chop the hard part fine and have the soft part whole. Mix the batter with the clams; fry by dropping a spoonful in hot fat. The batter should be very thick with clams.

SCOTCH BREAD. Two pounds of flour, one pound of butter, one-fourth of a pound of sugar; mix the flour and sugar together; boil the butter and mix well with the flour and sugar; when mixed let it stand two hours before baking; prick it well and put on caraway and citron.

FROSTING WITHOUT EGGS.

One cupful of granulated; sugar and five tablespoonfuls of milk; boil five minutes, stir until cold and put on a cold cake. M. R. H.

Tests of Good Breeding.

It would be hard to afford a stronger evidence of being well bred, says the Boston Courier, than that of a society leader who had among her dinner guests one evening a relative from a distant rural district, who, though refined and well educated, knew but little of society rural district, who, though refined and well educated, knew but little of society ways and manners. Soon after the dainty finger bowls were placed on the table, the rustic visitor took up her bowl and drank from it! The hostess observed it, and showed admirable tact a moment after by drinking from her own bowl, thus sparing her guest the mortification which might otherwise have resulted. Another case where generous consideration and tact were shown, was where a well known lady of Boston was travelling in Europe, not long since. She went to London for only a day or two for the sole purpose of seeing a friend, who, by the way, belonged to the nobility. When strongly urged to meet a few friends at dinner the next evening, she declined, and on being pressed for a good reason, was frank enough to say that she had with her no suitable dress for such an occasion, but only a black silk. "Wear your black silk and I will wear one too, so you may feel quite at ease," said the hostess; and a promise was given to be present. What was the surprise of the Boston lady when, on entering the drawingroom, to find all the ladies in black silk gowns. Lady Dash had written her guests, requesting them to "wear black silk."

ESTIMATES FOR 1888.

In this issue the estimates of city ex penses for the year 1888 are given, and they will be found very interesting reading. For purposes of comparison the ap-propriations of the present year are given also the amounts asked for by the several committees, and the amounts recommend ed by the finance committee. It will be seen that the latter committee have used their pruning knife judiciously, but never-theless the gross amount is still too

The total asked for by the several com mittees is $628,085, but this the Finance, committee has cut down to $589,235, $27,155 more than was appropriated for this year. This includes, however, $24,-837, which has been either expended or for which orders have been drawn the present year. Evidently there is to be no reduction of taxation the coming year, if these figures are adopted.

Of the committees that are to receive an increase the Highway department is given some $4,000 more, although they asked for $23,500; the Free Library is next with nearly $2,000; the police department gets $1,350; the school board wanted $6,500, but are given $3,250, and

Of all these increased appropriations, that for the police department is perhaps a necessity. The Public Library is an a necessity. The Public Library is an excellent institution and doing a great excellent institution and doing a great deal of good, but last year's appropria-tion was a liberal one. The Highway department should be able to get along with the amount they received last year, and let costly jobs go over for another year. The schools are supported as liberally as in any city in the state, but there are fewer pupils in the High School than last year, and the cost of maintain-ing the school should not be increased under the circumstances in which the city is placed.

The City Council should examine each item carefully and see where retrenchment is possible. No allowance should be made for any increase in valuation next year, because, taking what a large number of estates have sold for during the year, the present tax rate would be, on a fair valuation, from $18 to $20 a thousand, which is altogether too high.

There should also be made some record There should also be made some record of the work contemplated another year, and the specific sums appropriated for each piece of work, so that next year's committees would have something to guide them. Under the present system they have merely the memory of old members, and that is one reason, perhaps. members, and that is one reason, perhaps, why the appropriations are exceeded so

It is only fair to say, however, that the income of the city this year will exceed the estimates by several thousand dollars, so that the amount charged to next year's taxes will not be as large as stated in the figures of the committee. and that $9,000 of the excess has not yet been expended and may not be until next The miscellaneous fund also fell short early in the year, because of an unexpected judgment against the city for $3,400, and of the expenditure of $1,500 for a bell and striker, on account of the burning of Eliot Church. These were emergencies, however, which are liable to happen every year, and they should be provided for by greater economy.

The policy of exceeding the appropria-tions is a most pernicious one, and should be followed only in extreme cases, which are liable to happen not oftener than once in a score of years. If there are unexpected expenses, let the city government do what business men have to do, retrench in other ways.

The City Council has no easy task before it, in the careful revising and pruning down of these estimates, but the interests of the city demand that it should be done. The limit of taxation has been reached, if it has not been passed, and for some years to come there should be greater economy in all city expense

ONE curious feature about the election this year, was that Governor Ames received just three more votes this year than were given to Secretary of State Pierce last year, the latter's vote then being 1623. Mr. Pierce still runs ahead of his ticket, he receiving 36 more votes this

THE NEED OF REFORM.

Now that the State Election is over city politics are receiving more attention, and there is a general demand for retrenchment and reform in all branches of the city government. How these desirable objects are to be accomplished is the question which is now agitating the tax payers, and the problem is certainly not

With a tax-rate that is, considering the valuation, nearly as high as any other city in the state, there is no room for any increase in expenditures, and the most urgent necessity for retrenchment.

The committees who have charge of the expenditures are in a very dif-ficult position, it is admitted. We have more territory than most cities of double our size and wealth, and the demands for costly improvements are both urgent and numerous. But for this the committees are themselves partly to blame. They do not like to say no, and like the unjust judge, they yield if only the demands are pressed with sufficient importunity.

Perhaps if they had felt that they would be supported by popular sentiment both the committees and other city officials would have been able to brace up, and work resolutely for retrenchment and for the tax-payers, but there has been a general laxity which has resulted in a large excess of expenditures over the appropriations. Charging to next year has been easier than economizing, and the easiest method prevailed.

What Newton needs is officials who care nothing for popularity, who will be able to say No emphatically when any extravagance is contemplated, and who will work just as hard to keep the city's expenses within its income, as they would in conducting their own private business. If such men could be found they would be sure of an election.

THE STATE ELECTION.

Newton did particularly well in the state election, giving Mr. Ames a majority over Lovering of 1,026, this being more than double the majority over Andrew last year, which was 459. He received 808 votes more than both Lovering and Earle, while last year his majority in Newton was only 407. It shows that Mr. Ames has earned the approval of the citizens of Newton and that the Democitizens of Newton, and that the Democratic candidate and the methods pur-sued by his party in this campaign are not popular here. The result was achieved with only one rally, and with very little political work.

We congratulate the Third Party on their increase from 52 votes last year to 211 this, as the result of their earnest and unremitting labors. The figures do not represent the actual standing of the Third Party, however, as they include a number of Democrats and Mugwumps, who would not vote for Lovering, and felt that they could not consistently vote for Mr. Ames. The efforts of the Third Party were not lost, however, as the good temperance speeches made at their numerous rallies must have had a reforming influence, and it is charitable to suppose they are even more interested in temperance cause than they are in the Third Farty.

The result elsewhere in the state was as favorable for the Republicans as in Newton, and the next legislature will be Republican by a largely increased majority, which will be favorable to good legislation on all the issues that come before it. Massachusetts is evidently still years for from being a Dorseit. very far from being a Democratic state, or one where the spoils system of politics is popular.

THE NONANTUM ATHENÆUM.

To fall under the auctioneer's hammer næum, which promised to be one of the most philanthropic of Newton's public enterprises. After an existence of five years, almost to a day, the stockholders give up the attempt to provide a reading room and a meeting place for our factory population. Of the $3,800 put into the enterprise only a little more than a fourth has been realized. But this is not the worst feature of the case. The fact that a comfortable building, well lighted and heated, and provided with books and facilities for games and social amuse-ments, should not be appreciated by the people for whom it was intended, is rather disheartening to those interested.

THE talk about "non partisan nomin tions," as though they were something just invented, rather amuses the members of the Citizen's party, who have been following that policy quite successfully for several years. If we are to have non-partisan caucuses and a non-partisan convention for the nomination of city officers, it is to be hoped that they will be in fact as well as in name citizen's caucuses, that no trades or parcelling out of offices between two or more parties will be contemplated. Let them make nominations solely on the ground of fitness, without regard to previous condition of party servitude, and then the candidates will be the best men, and worthy of an election.

Among the gentlemen mentioned as desirable candidates for Mayor, in case Mayor Kimball should not run again, are Mr. A. D. S. Bell of Chestnut Hill, one of the most successful business men in Boston, and who has remarkable executive ability; Mr. Dwight Chester of Newton Centre, who is thorough posted on city affairs, and a thorough believer in reform, and Mr. Lucius G. Pratt of West Newton, which ward has never yet had a Mayor. It is not an easy thing to find a man who is thoroughly qualified, as man who is thoroughly qualified, and who is willing to accept, but refusals are no longer in order. When the right man is found he should be made to accept, on account of the duty every citizen owes president, Miss Mary Rogers.

— Few of the thousands who daily ride over the track between Auburndale and Newtonville are aware that this section has the best track on the B. &. W. Division of the B. &. A. R. R. Yet such is the fact as shown by P. H. Dudley's dynograph car, a car that registers every inequality in the rails. The foreman of the above mentioned section, Mr. J. W. Yeaton of this village, has taken four of the five prizes offered this year for the best track on this division; the prizes were each $50 in cash. He has previously taken one prize, two years, and two prizes, one year.

—Mr. W. E. Plummer, Jr., and wife have returned from their trip and are at the Woodland Park Hotel, where they will spend the winter.

-Next Sunday morning and evening the Rev Andrew McKeoun, D. D., a for-mer well-known pastor, will preach at the Methodist church.

—Mrs. Lincoln gives the demonstration lectures in cooking at Lasell this year, and Mrs. Oahes the private lessons. This is the eleventh year of Mrs. Lincoln's instruction in this branch.

—The fine conservatories of R. M. Pulsifer are being dismantled and the plants sold. T. F. Mansfield, who has been the florist in charge for so long, will go from here to take charge of the greenhouses of the Newton cemetery.

—In order to increase the accommodations with the increased numbers at Lasell, the old settees and desks have been removed from the chapel and small opera chairs have been put in their place. The chapel can now seat the full number of 150 pupils.

—The Ladies' Benevolent Society met in the parlors of the Congregational Church on Thursday afternoon. A large number of the church society joined them at supper and spent the usual pleasant evening of the first sociable of the season.

There were 24 communicants at the early service at the Church of the Messiah on All Saints' day, a much larger number than at any previous service on that day. The rite of confirmation was administered to seven persons at the Sunday morning service, and among them were two Harvard men.

were two Harvard men.

—The alarm of fire from Box 54, which was rung in Tuesday afternoon, was a brush fire which burnt over some ten acres. The fire originated from a locomotive spark; the damage was very slight, but the smoke was disagreeable for the inmates of the Cottage Hospital, opposite which the fire was located.

—There are registered at the Woodland Park Hotel this week Charles Hopkins of Wellington, D.; H. S. Spencer of Pawtucket, R. I.; G. M. Arthur and wife of Malden, Miss Hattie Stearns of Cambridge, G. E. Cabot and J. W. Wood of Brookline, C. L. Finch, N. Y.; Mrs. S. B. Dean of Roxbury and Stephen Holman of Worcester.

—The Reading club of the ladies of the "hill" part of Central street met this week, with Mrs. N. W. Farlev for the s cond reading of the year. —The Ladies' Auxiliary Society connected with the Unitarian church was invited upon their first meeting of the season to a reception at the house of Mrs F. F. Raymond, Hillside avenue. Several new members were added, and it proved a very pleasant occasion. The work of the season was discussed, and it is hoped a very useful one may be the result, under the guidance of its most efficient president, Miss Mary Rogers.

—Few of the thousands who daily ride over the track between Auburndale and Newtonville are aware that this section has the best track on the B. & W. Division of the B. & A. B. B. W. Stevels in the section of the season will also be held.

—Prof. Edwin F. Kimball, of Chauncy Hall School, delivered a lecture on "Alcohol and Life," in the Congregational church on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Womans' Christian Temperance Union of Auburndale. Wishing that all the teachers of the village might hear the lecture and meet Prof. Kimball, the ladies of the W. C. T. U. invited them to a supper in the Congregational vestry, before the lecture. From Lasell Seminary fourteen teachers were invited, from Riverside School five, from the Williams school eight and two from the Kindergarten. Besides these who teach in the village, there were teachers from the Newton High school, a Boston Grammar school, and the Institute of Technology, who reside in Auburndale. The pastors of the village were present, and the husbands of the W. C. T. U. officers, and a few honorary members of the society were invited, who acted as ushers in the evening. All the company wore the white ribbon badge, and after the supper a few appropriate toasts were responded to by Rev. Mr. Cutier of the Cougregational church, Rev. Mr. Newhall of the Methodist church, Prof. Kimball, Prof Bragdon of Lasell Seminary, and two ladies—teachers. Miss E. P. Gordon. President of the W. C. T. U., was the toast mistress.

—Heory O'Grady and Michael Leonard have been sent to the Concord Reformatory for an indefinate period for being common drunkards.

—The Ordinance of the Lord's Supper was administered at the North church last Sunday morning, one person uniting with the church.

—Mr. A. H. Wallis and family of St. Louis, Mo., has been visiting Mr. Wm. Wallis of California street; his many old friends were glad to see him looking so well.

—A petition for an administration of the estate of the late Seth Bemis has been filed in the Middlesex county Probate court, by Jonathan W. Bemis, The writ is returnable Monday, Nov. 21. The deceased left no will.

—Last Sunday afternoon about 2 o'clock John Cronin, an Syear old son of the gate-tender at the Centre street crossing, was severely bitten by a dog belonging to H. R. Hamill. The animal's teeth pierced the left arm nearly to the bone and aiso lacerated the right shoulder. The dog was shot shortly after by Officer Burdon. The boy is progressing favorably toward recovery.

—The funeral of Mrs. Sarah E. Worth occurred at the North schurch last Friday from the mother of the deceased bor flowing were extremely beautiful; a large pillow of Marshal Neil roses with the word "Giber of several selections, one of which was very expressive. The flora offerings were extremely beautiful; a large pillow of Marshal Neil roses with the word "Giber" in this village, a pillow of white roses bearing the word "teacher," from the scholars of the primary dearmon, a beautiful bouquet of white chrysanthemums from Dea. J. Warner of Newton, a bouquet of roses from Mrs. E. F. Kendall and a basket of flowers from C. L. Woodworth of Newtonville, also many other offerings. Mrs. Worth will long be missed by many in this village to whon she has extended a helping hand.

The Second Congregational Church.

The Second Congregational Church.

The history of the Second Church is in a measure the history of the development of West Newton. In 1661 there were only three settlers in what is now known as West Newton, and about a hundred years later the inhabitants took measures to have religious services in the neighborhood. As early as 1760 meetings were held, and Thomas Miller, Jonathan Williams and Samuel Hastings were appointed a building committee. In 1764 Phineas Bond, in consideration of 48 shillings, gave about eight rods of land for a meeting house. The edifice, measuring 43 feet by 30, being finished, the citizens petitioned in 1767 to be allowed town money for preaching expenses, but being refused were set off in a separate parish in 1778. October 21, 1781, 26 persons, all but one from the First Church, were organized as the Second Church. Among them many bore names yet familiar—Jackson, Fuller, Woodward, Ward and Williams. Mr. William Greenoug hs acho w sen first pastor and ordained Nov, 8, 1781. "A small house and a handful of people" was the remark of one present. This building sufficed until 1712, and on Thanksgiving day of the same year the clurch was reopened, having been enlarged by an a idition of 12 feet to the main structure and by putting in galleries. In 1828 Rev. Lyman Gilbert was elected colleague pastor, and was ordained July 2, 1828. In 1831 Mr. Greenough died and Mr. Gilbert became pastor. This year the building was further enlarged and again in 1838. Ten years later it was sold to the town and served as town hall and at last, being altered, as the city hall. The new editice was dedicated the same vear, costing $13,000. This building was enlarged in 1870 and again in 1880. The hift hand present pastor, Rev. H. J. Patrick, was installed in September, 1860.

ment at the end of the season will also be held.

—A delightful musicale was given on Tuesday evening at the beautiful home of Mrs. H. A. Pemberton, the proceeds of which will go to aid Miss Williston in her children's home. The music was all exceptionally fine, Miss M. E. Roberts, teacher of history in Wellesley College, adding much to the enjoyment by her rendering of several difficult German songs. Miss Wheeler and Miss Ely, statedents of Wellesley, also assisted. The program was as follows: 1. Transcription of Rigoletto (Liszt), Mrs. H. A. Pemberton. 2. "The Blacksmith's Bride," (Holzee), Mrs. M. J. Ward. 3. Marguerite, (White). Miss Guerriere. 4. Recitation, "Robert O'Lincoln," (Bryant), Miss Ely, 5. "Das Haidekind" (Schaefer) and "Dein Gedenskirg" (Helmand), Miss K. E. Roberts. 6. Selection, Quartet. 7. Serenata (Moskowski), Spanish song, (Jensen), Miss Wheeler. 8. TWe extend our congratulations to the Newton Graphic on the arrival of its sixteenth birthday and hope the many good things that usually arrive at that good things that usually arrive at that becoming age may be showered upon our neighbor. The appearance of the paper in an embarged form, is certainly deserving of many compliments, and the addition to their office of a new Babeock press with all the modern improvements, will be of great assistance to them in doing a much larger business in a much shorter space of time than formerly. NATHAN'S REVENGE.

BY HELEN F. KENDRICK

Nathan Felder stood in his watermelor patch; the day's work was over and he had a right to the rest he was taking. The network of vines, covering acres of land and the billows of green-striped fruit and the bllows of green-striped trutt made a pleasant sight to the master's eyes as he leaned against the rail fence and looked around him. It was all his —his by right of honest toil, and he was to reap a rich reward in round silver dollars. Day by day he had worked in the field by the side of his laborers, not despising the toil, but fluding in it a refuge from his restless spirit. Now the harvest time had come; many of the luscious melons lying before him had been already pledged to dealers in Atlanta, and this was the parting visit Nathan was making before the perfect beauty of his field should be broken The sun had hidden itself behind the. trees and the air had already begun to cool, from the damp odors of the creek running near by. On one side of the field lay the road, on which Nathan's own cows were lazily going home, with a lazy, whistling boy behind them. There was an uneasy flutter of partridges in the bushes near the fence; the whip-poor-wills were pouring forth their little souls in plaintive song; the creek murmured its accompaniment to the mysterious noises that came from its strange world of inhabitants. But on the absorbed face of the man there was no attention, his ears were not open to these voices of the twilight. "If Harry'd a lived," he said, "this would 'a) sent 'im to college this year.'

A darkness came over his face, and he

A darkness came over his face, and he took his arm restlessly from the fence.
"I'll do it yit." he muttered. "Nothin' but Harry's kep' me back all these years. I reckon Harry's got hold o' the trigger, else hit would a gone off that night in the woods."

A hopeless look came into his eyes as he turned and placed his other arm on he turned and placed his other arm on the tence. "I don' reckon I'll ever kill him, but sometimes hit looks like I've got to," he muttered. His face was sad and dark, but not bad. There was a well-spring of goodness within him, but a drop of bitterness- had tainted the sweet waters. "My God!" he said, sweet waters. "My God!" he said, "what do I dig an' hoe an' plant fer? Matty ain't no good an' I ain't no good. Her an Harry was the only ones wuth livin', an' they're over thar in the buryin'-

While he had been thinking half aloud While he had been thinking half aloud there had been a low sound of sobbing which now reached his ears. He came back from the graves of his wife and child with a start of terror, as though some supernatural voice had called him. "What's that?" he said, then listened eagerly, so that he might locate the sound. In a moment it came again, the low crying of a tired, frightened child. Nathan sprang o er the fence, so that he might walk without trampling his vines; he hurried along, following the sound of the sobbing until he reached a certain point in the fence where the rails were out of place. There it was. He looked over into his precious patch and saw a

"Well, I'll be blamed." ing on a melon. "Well, I'll be blamed," Nathan cried, as he sprang across the fence into the melon field, "if that ar

Natian cried, as he sprain across the fence into the melon field, "if that ar don't beat me."

The child raised its face, the eyes floating in tears, and the mouth puckered with crying. The little arms went up to the stranger, and a burst of joyous crying eave him welcome:—"Mammy!"

Nathan was not manmy but he was pappy, and he picked up the little one and wiped the eyes, mouth and checks with his pocket-handerchief.

"Whar'd you come from youngster, an how'd yer git in my melon patch?"
There was something so pitiful about the little four year old, so far from home, and Nathan could see by the part in the hair that he held a boy in his arms, so he kissed the little mouth from which the grief had not yet vanished.

"But the boy would not answer, so Nafeller. What's yo' name?"

But the boy would not answer, so Nathan tossed him up in the air, tickled him, sat him on the fence and tried to talk "baby-talk." Then he plumped him down on to a water-melon, while he fished in his pockets for an apple. He found one and then the child laughed. This was the beginning of sport; in a moment the boy was on his feet, chasing Nathan: was the beginning of sport; in a moment the boy was on his feet, chasing Nathau: the boy was on his feet, chasing Nathan; round and round they ran, trampling the vines and bruising the melons, but they were both so happy—what did they care? When they were tired they sat down together in the corner of the fence and the child's head rested against Nathan's arm. How good, how sweet it was to have a baby near him—an innocent heart that rested against his, trusting him as shawl around the boy and took him gen-tly in his arms. It was harder work to climb the fences and walk through the fields now, but was ever a burden sweet-er and holier?

"There were ninety and nine that sately lay In the shelter of the fold. But one that wandered far away." To the desert so lone and cold." "I don' know what makes them lines keep a-runnin' in my head now," Nathan thought. "That lamb b'longed to the sherperd, an' hyer I am totin' inother man's lamb jest for no reason on the arth but me not havin' pluck to leave it 'lone." Baby Stafford's arms tightened round Nathan's neck. "I don' know what's the matter with me. Niggers aintgot no respec' fer me jest 'cause. I'm so easy-goin' with 'em. But I never'd a thought I'd a toted Stafford's boy home fer him—in the night, too. If I'd a been half a man I'd a shot Ezra years ago. Thar I was in the woods that night aimin' square at him an' the trigger a'ready pulled, when all at once I event limp as a rag an' sneaked outen the woods like I'd been n-stealin'. I tried to git Ezra to fight, but he wouldn't, so I tole 'im I'd shoot him some day, an' he might look out fer me." Nathan had walked a long distance with his little burden and his arm was getting tired. So he tried gently to move the boy to the other side. The little one stirred, but did not wake from its deep sleep of exhaustion. The curls nestled up under Nathan's hair, and a curious sensation stirred his heart. The journey was nearly over now. These were Ezra's fences past which he walked. He was holding Baby Stafford in his arms for the last time in all his life. Perhaps he should never again look upon that Innocent face lying against his own. He stooped and kiesed the buy once, and then again. "Hit's jest like me," he sighed. "I never was filten to have no family, cause I ain't able to fight fer its honor. I let Ezra insult me an' kill my buy, an' hyer I am totin' his baby home and stealin' kisses fum it—an' wuss'n that I'm a-loy-in' to feel it in my arms an' a-wishin' it was mine. I reckon I was on on ever, he had a wand had outraged all his ideas of manhood. and he seated himself, now self-branded as "no 'count' and a coward. In his abasement his soul went out to any one else have digged about this plant and nourished it, hence its growth and hence upon them greatly rests the blame. An American awhile ago, on leaving Liverpool, sprang upon the rail of his steamer and shouted to the crowd on the dock, "if there is a person in the whole land that I have not "tipped" I would like to see him," and the story is, no one came forward. Travellers say that this thing is worse on the continent. In Paris the driver of your cab always expects a few sous for himself when you pay for your ride; and when leaving a hotel the way the help will muster to see you off, beats the doves flocking to the windows.

Now to the unfortunate, the poor, it is always well to be generous. It is not wrong for them to receive, neither is it wrong, but holy, for them to ask. But for a man to insinuate that he wants money when he has no right to it, is a crime. A crime against his own manhood if nothing more. The man who practices this, in a short time will become a sycophant and monkeyish. I know of but one place where this weed has rooted itself in America, and that is in the Pullman sleeping car. The porters there say that they are not sufficiently paid and must receive "tips" from travellers in order to live. Somebody ought to get at the truth of this matter and see if it cannot be remedied. For one, I can't believe that so heavy a paying company as the Pullman is dealing thus with its employees.

If it is, let it be exported from the United States to its own clime. Let us make our institutions deal with their employees in a way that they will develop manliness.

One of the inevitables which must come of this thing if allowed to flourish is partiality. The wealthy, because of their "trips" will get all the favors and courtesies, while the poor man will get nothing.

He might as well label himself "freight" while travelling or ride in a cattle car, where the law protects him from cruelty.

There is another use to which palms are being put here in Great Britian, and it is very interesting to some. It is from cruelty.

There is another use to which palms are being put here in Great Britian, and it is very interesting to some. It is an express business. The expressing of inner emotions. It is just amazing how much love can be transferred by the palm. You often see it on the cars or in the omnibus on the way to some pienic ground. The beard-raising young man quietly glides his sweaty palm into the palm of his lady friend—his best girl," sitting close to his side, and their fingers becoming braided, their eyes disclose the fires within. Not having seen this before, at least in public, you wonder if a consciousness of your presence will not cut the connection and stop the current. So you wait for a return to consciousness, promising yourself a smile on witnessing the rupture. But you wait in vain, for the rupture does not occur, or the return to conciousness does not—or something. Those four brilliant lenses will be turned on you, and you imagine a shadow of pity is struggling there for an individual about your size. The common occurrence of this scene in public places helps you to forget the other use to which palms are so often put.

Salt Rheum

The agonies of those who suffer from severo salt rheum are indescribable. The cleansing, healing, purifying influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla are unequalled by any other medicine.

"I take pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla, for it has done wonders for me. I had salt rheum very severely, affecting me over nearly my entire body. Only those who have suffered from this disease in its worst form can imagine the extent of my affliction. I tried many medicines, but failed to receive benefit until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. Then the disease began to subside, the

"I was seriously troubled with salt rheum for three years, and receiving no benefit from medical treatment I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am now entirely cured of salt rheum; my weight has increased from 108 lbs, to 135." Mrs. ALICE SMITH, Stamford, Conn. If you suffer from salt rheum, or any blood disease, try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has cured many others, and will cure you.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

JUAN AND JUANITA.

This is the title of a very attractive book, which was published in part in the St. Nicholas, but has now been issued in handsome binding and with numerous illustrations by Messrs. Ticknor & Co. It is by Francis Courtenay Baylor, and is the story of two Mexican children who were captured by Indians and escaped after four years' captivity. It is founded on fact, and is in every way calculated to please the little ones who are fond of tales of adventure. The experiences of the young hero and heroine in northern Mexico and western Texas are vividly described, and life among the Indians is portrayed with a truthfulness that is not often found in more pretentious works relating to frontier life. It is a book that children will place beside "Robinson Crusoe" in the home library. handsome binding and with numerous is finely illustrated and printed, and the great dry goods firm's venture in the publishing field is rather of an innovation. Mr. Grant's mame win of course make the book sell, but it can hardly be regarded as up to his previous works. It is something after the style, by a considerable distance, however, of Tom Brown, but apparently the American Rugby has not been discovered by Mr. Grant, and the boarding school he describes is too evidently drawn from the imagination. "Jack" must have been a terrible nuisance, but he improves as the story goes forward, and becomes partially civilized before he is ready for Harvard, when the book leaves him. The book has altogether too much the appearance of having been written to order to have an enduring popularity.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE. SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.

The twenty-two illustrations which accompany Dr. Dudley A. Sargent's second paper on physical training, in the No-vember issue of Scribner's magazine, are without doubt the finest collection of paper on physical training, in the November issue of Scribner's magazine, are without doubt the finest collection of athletic portraits ever published in any periodical. They are portraits of noted athletes of Harvard and Yale, reproduced by wood engraving from instantaneous photographs. The full-page engraving for the wrestlers is remarkable for its display of the human form in action. In this article, Dr. Sargent shows the distinguishing physical traits which fit men for excelling in various branches of athletics. The paper will attract wide attention, both for its text and its illustrations. The leading article in this number is an interesting paper by Wm. F. Apthorp, the musical critic of the Boston Transcript, on "Wagner and Scenic Art." It is richly illustrated. Rev. Henry M. Field, D. D., describes a visit to a most interesting country in Northern Algeria, known as Grand Kabylia—the Switzerland of Africa. "A Diplomatic Episode" is a notworthy paper by Miss Olive Risley Seward, the adopted daughter of ex-Secretary Seward, and his confidante in many important political affairs, explaining for the first time an incident in our diplomatic history relating to the failure of the negotiations for the purchase, from Denmark, of the islands of St. Thomas and St. John. General Francis A. Walker, president of the Massachusetts Institution of Technology, contributes a vigorous, plain-spoken article, entitled "What Shall we Tell the Working-classes."

The Christmas number of Scribner's Magazine will contain double the usual number of illustrations, every one of which has been made from a drawing by some well-known and expert artist. A few of those represented are Will H. Low, Wm. Hole, A. R. S. A., R. Swain Gifford, Howard Pyle, E. H. Blasshfield, J. W. Alexander, George Foster Barnes, F. Hopkinson Smith and F. S. Church.

Swain Gifford, Howard Pyle, E. H. Blashfield, J. W. Alexander, George Foster Barnes, F. Hopkinson Smith and F. S. Church. The price will remain the same as usual—25 cents, The ballad which Robert Louis Stevenson, the author of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," who is now in this country, will contribute, is the first which he has ever published, and those who have read it say that it will surprise the most ardent admirers of his versatility by its vigor and stirring movement combined with delicate imagery. It has an American title—"Ticonderoga." "THE WRITER."

an American title—"Ticonderoga."

"THE WRITER."

Every phase of literary work is touched upon by contributors of the November number of "The Writer" (Boston). Articles on "Literary Fields." "Egotism in Correspondence," "Rejected Manuscrist," "Advice to Newspaper Correspendents," "Civil Service Rules in the Newspaper Office," "The Care of Cuttings," "Indexing," "A Practical Poet's Portfolios," "Editors vs. Publishers," "English in Newspapers and Novels," "The Pay of Reporters," "The Historical Method," "English Grammar in the English Language, "A Common Error," "Changing One's Signature," and "Brevity in Writing," all by well-known writers, make the number especially strong, Besides these articles there are "Queries," "Book Reviews," Helpful Hints and Suggestions," "News and Notes," and the invaluable reference list of "Literary Articles on Periodicals," which is the only thing of the kind published, and which puts within the reach of readers everything relating to literary work that is printed, not only in the magazines, but in the newspapers of the country. "The Writer" is edited and published by Wm. H. Hills and Robert Luce, and the price is one dollar a year, or ten cents a number. Address: The Writer, P. O. Box 1905, Boston, Mass.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM.

Peter Henderson contributes to the American Agriculturist the following netes in regard to this popular plant: Next to the rose no plant is so popular as the Chrysanthemum. It is only some as the Chrysanthennum. It is only some then or twelve years since, in this country, its great value as an ornamental plant for the fall and early winter months has been fully realized, although it has been fully realized, although it has been fully realized, although it has been tong valued in Europe, where it forms the great attraction in all the floral exhibitions of autumn. The first great Chrysanthemum show was given in New York, some five years ago. Since then Chrysanthemum show was given in New York, some five years ago. Since then every November, Philadelphia, Boston, and other large cities have vied with New York in getting up these exhibitions, which have attracted tens of thousands of visitors. The fashion is now spreading into cities and towns, so that the day is not far distant when this most beautiful of all autumn flowers will be found in every hamlet on the connow spreading into cities and towns, so that the day is not far distant when this most beautiful of all autumn flowers will be found in every hamlet on the continent, whose occupants have any taste for flowers.

Fleur-du-Lis of France, and there is hardly a home in that flowery land so poor that it is not ornamented by one or more varieties of the "autumn queen." In the gardens of the Mikado, which contain marvellous varieties of this plant, they are trained on wire frames to represent animals of all descriptions—white elephants, yellow crows, and crimson dogs are by no means rarities in the grounds of the Mikado. The Chrysanthemum, too, is put to another purpose in Japan. When a rural swain makes up his mind to sue for the hand of some rustic belle, his first advance is to place as fine a specimen of a Chrysanthemum as he can procure on her doorstep. If it is watered, tended, and cared for, he knows he may "call again," but if neglected and allowed to wither and die, so dies out the hope of the unfortunate "Jap," so far as that particular damsel is concerned.

son Crusoe' in the home library.

JACK HALL.

"Jack Hall, or the School Days of an American Bay," by Robert Grant, was written to order for Jordan & Marsh. It is finely illustrated and price l, and the great dry goods firm's venture in the publishing field is rather of an innovation. Mr. Grant's name win of course make the book selt, but it can hardly be regarded as up to his previous works. It is something after the style, by a considerable distance, however, of Tom Brown, but apparently the American Rugby has not been discovered by Mr. Grant, and the boarding school he escribes is too evidently drawn from the imagination. "Jack' must have been a termble nuisance, but he improves as the story goes forward, and becomes partially civilized before he is ready for Harvard, when the book leaves him. The book has altogether too much the appearance of having been written to order to have an endetter to corder to have no endetter to corder to the special properties.

OUT-DOOR CULTIVATION.

This is exceedingly simple. If the plants are to flower only in the open ground, all that is necessary is to plant them in the open border in any good them in the open border in any good. Butting from them in the open border in any good them in the open border in any good them in the open border in any good them in the open border in any good. Butting from the publishing the plant die not he open border in any good them in the open HOUSE CULTURE.

When wanted to be grown for green-house or house culture, the best plan for amateurs is to put each plant when received in a flower-pot six, seven, or eight inches wide and deep; piunge these pots to the rims in the open ground, level with the soil, treating exactly the same as recommended for planting in the open border, by pinching, etc. Care should, however, be taken to turn the flower pots round every eight or ten days, so as to prevent the roots getting through the bottom of the pot, the object being to confine all the roots within the pot. This same plan is the best for amateurs who cultivate any kind of plant to grow in the house or greenhouse in the winter.

Antiques are decidedly the fashion nowa-days, and our homes are filled with the beautiful and the grotesque of the time of our ancestors, that is if we are fortunate enough to possess such treasures. In the Congregational church at Newton Centre, on the front of the gallery, is an old clock that has counted the seconds of a century and a quarter, and to-day reminds one of Longreilow's poem. On its dial is inscribed, "John Rogers made and gave it 1761." By the way, this John was a lineal descendent of the John who, as a dying joker declared, "died with his feet warn."

In England the cry is "Reign, Victoria!" In America, it is "Hail, Columbia!" This is perhaps due to the freezing out of families in this country.—

Miss Clara—"And so your engagement with Mr. Featherly is at an end, Ethel?" Miss Ethel—"Yes, forevermore." Miss Clara—"Will you return the presents he gave you?" Miss Ethel—"No, I cannot do that. He never gave me anything but caramels and ice cream."—[N. Y. Sun.

organ was put in the church, the gift of members and other friends. Dr. Stebbins members and other friends. Dr. Stebbins died Ang. 13, 1885, and a memorial service was held Sept. 6th. In Dec. 23, 1885 a new minister took charge, and in 1886 the church was modernized. The speaker said that Unitarianism is not a doubtful institution. We bolieve in its future. It does not require a unity of belief in all details. It is simple, moral, vital, broad. Individuals were stronger if others agreed with them in general end and aims, and so with churches. Rev. Mr. Wheeler will preach the sermon at the union meeting on Thanksgiving day.

—The Monday Club met this week with Mrs. S. C. Cobb. The next meet-ing of the club will be on Thursday next, with Mrs. Strong, at Waban. —The Graphic of this week contains a list of the estimated expenses of the city for the year 1888. This list is of much interest to tax-payers.

—Now is a good time to subscribe for the Graphic for 1888, as the proprietor offers it free for the months of Novem-ber and December of this year.

—Dr. Burr, who has lately moved into the Skinner house, has now been joined by a brother and wife from South Fram-ingham, who will make their home there for the present.

—We hear that Mr. Amasa Crafts has made a contract with Mr. Hiram Ross to build a house on Boylston street on the lot next south of the residence of Mr. Alex Tyler.

—Three hundred and twenty-four voters voted at the state election on Tuesday last, from the registered list of four hundred and fifty-seven names, in Ward 5. Last year two hundred and eighty-seven persons voted.

—The Dana house on Lincoln street, for many years past occupied by Mr. G. A. Goodyear, is being put in thorough repair, also receiving a coat of paint, which will give it a very attractive appearance. We understand that it will be offered for sale.

—Mrs. A. M. Young of Tappan Place has gone to South Boston to spend the winter. Mr. C. H. Young will occupy a portion of her house, and Mr. H. E. Fales, who is soon to be married, will with his bride take up their residence there.

—Robert Blair, for several years with A. W. Snow of Newton Centre, has opened a plumbing shop over Mullen's blacksmith shop, and is ready to do all kinds of work promptly and in the best manner. This will be a great convenience to people in this village.

—Mr. Herbert Warren, son of Rev. Dr. Warren, and Miss Catherine Reed, daughter of Rev. James Reed of the new Jerusalem church, Bowdoin street, Boston, were united in marriage on Tuesday noon, Nov. 8th. The newly married couple will reside at Waban.

—Burglars effected an entrance to the second story of the house of Mr. Horace Bacon one evening last week, and a gold watch belonging to Mr. Bacon, also various articles of jewelry belonging to Mrs. Bacon were stolen; also the house of Mr. C. W. Randall was entered, but not much was taken, as the burglars had probably become alarmed.

probably become alarmed.

—The older members of the Christian Endeavor Society held a sociable at the Congregational chapel on Monday evening to which all members of the congregation over fitteen years of age were invited. An entertainment consisting of games, a piano and violin duet by the Misses Manson, a reading by Miss Stevens, also one by Mr. W. B. Wood, vocal selections by the Misses Lilly and Mabel Collins, Misses Mary and Nancy Merrill and Miss Lilly Cobb, in Martha Washington costumes, made the evening a very enjoyable one.

crease in popularity during the coming winter.

—Second story thieves were active in the village on Saturday evening last. Between 7 and 9 o'clock, probably while the families were at tea, some thieves procuring ladders which were near by, entered the upper rooms of the houses of Mr. Horace Bacon and Mr. C. W. Randall on Boylston street. From Mr. Bacon's they took his valuable gold watch and a chain belonging to Mrs. Bacon, and a number of gold rings. In their hurry they overlooked a gold watch belonging to Mrs. Bacon, which was in the dressing case. At Mr. Randall's, the same tactics were employed in entering the house and the thieves succeeded in getting away with a chain and locket belonging to Miss Mattie Randall. The robberies was not discevered until the families were about to retire, so that there is no trace of the robbers.

to Miss Mattie Randall. The robberies was not discovered until the families were about to retire, so that there is no trace of the robbers.

—On Saturday of last week the village was painfully surprised to hear of the death of Mr. D. Warren Flagg. He had been in delicate health for some time but none were aware that the end was so near. His death seems particularly sad for many reasons. He was a young man, just entering upon the most useful period of man's existence, the prime of life. He was ambitious and capable, and a general favorite with all with whom he came in contact, possessing a remarkable faculty for making and keeping triends. He had lad a number of years of experience and training in Boston and New York, in the straw business, and was considered a salesman of excellent business capacity. He was interested in everything pertaining to the welfare of the village and always ready to assist in all the social and benevolent enterprises that are constantly occurring. When in the flush of perfect health, he had a superabundance of life and energy that made his association in the various enterprises very much desired. He was a member of Echo Bridge Council, Royal Arcanum, of which body he was the faithful and efficient secretary for nearly the entire time since its organization, and by his death the order loees not only a faithful secretary, but a member who took more than an ordinary amount of interest. The members of the society in attest of their good feeling contributed a floral design and were represented by a delegation from the order, four of the members paying the loving tribute, by acting as bearers on the occasion of his burial. His funcal took place at the residence of his pavents on Tuesday, Rev. Mr. Peterson officiating, assisted by Rev. Z. A. Mudge, and was largely attended. Among the sorrowing friends could be seen, not only a large proportion of young men, nearly the age of the deceased, but many older men and women, with gray hairs and tearful eyes; who gazed upon the face of the departed w

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—It is rumored that W. P. Holden's store was broken into by thieves on last Friday night.

—Owing to the pressure of business at the Dudley Hosiery Mills, some of the employes are working nights.
—Chas. McCarthy, Jr., was arrested by Inspectors Watts and Howard of Boston and will be tried in the police court this (Friday) afternoon for breaking and entering Newton Lower Falls post office.

—An alarm was sounded from Box 54 on Tuesday afternoon. This box is at the entrance to the Cottage Hospital, but the fire was in the woods on the opposite side of Washington street and was extinguished after two or three hours hard labor by the department.

—The Wellesley Courant, after an urgent appeal to have the name of this village changed to Wellesley Falls, does not find that public sentiment agrees with it, and reports one gentleman as saying, "I would rather pay a hundred dollars more a year and live on the Newton side, than live on the other side for all the low taxes."

—A general alarm of fire was given by the whistle on the Wellesley side early on Monday evening. This called the entire department of the town to an extensive woods fire in Wellesley, which had been raging reveral hours and had destroyed a large quantity of valuable wood, several cords of which was cut, ready for removal.

—The morning service in the Unitarian church last Sunday was appropriate for the day, it being the 10th anniversary of the founding of the society. Rev. Mr. Wheeler gave in his address a brief history of the society. The first meeting was held in White's Hall, Oct. 22nd, 1877, and the first preaching service was Nov. 11, 1877, the sermon being delivered by Rev. Dr. Stebbins, settled Jan. 6, 1878. The covenant was adopted April 12, the same year, and 51 members joined, 31 of whom still remain. About 150 have joined in all, and 100 are still left. No More Tacks in Shoes.

The old shoe, hand-lasted, is doomed. The tacks that the laster so earfully drove shall be known no more. The new laster drives no tacks, but smoothly and firmly joins sol- and upper with a ceitent that never yields, and the shoe, when sewed, is turned out not only a 'hing of beauty, but of lasting comfort to the wear T. Another improvement in shoe manufacture is the cutting of the myper as a single pace of leather, doing away with the old style seam at each side, and making the seamless shoe much neater in appearance and more comfortable to the foot.

These two improvements have leap adopted as

"EMMANUEL."

WHAT THE BOSTON PAPERS SAY ABOUT

Mr. Trowbridge's Oratorio of "Emmanuel" was presented at Tremont Temple, Boston, Wednesday night, before a large and appreciative audience. The Boston critics give very favorable notices, from which we make the following extracts:

mands of the oratorio stage, but without such difficulties as to exclude it from the repertoire of young societies and the enjoyment of the less cultured patrons of such productions. The work is, stroughout, pleasing, melodious and interesting, and without striking originality or marked contrasts, the score is nevertheless entertaining and enjoyable to lovers of sacred music. Old time forms are mainly followed in the writing, and the composer shows himself a good musician in all his work. A large proportion of the numbers are recitatives, and the composer has been especially successful in this line of writing. There are comparatively few numbers for the chorus, and that announcing that Christ has risen makes a notable example of the contraito arnas make the most effective solo numbers, and the "They have taken away my Lord" is one of the most enjoyable numbers. There is a trio for female voices, "Peace I leave with you," which is an admirably graceful bit of composition, and two unaccompanied quartets, "And lo! the angel" and "Peace on earth," are also highly effective. Mr. Trowbridge showed himself to be a competent conductor, and the able musical forces assembled under his direction gave a very enjoyable performance of his work. a very enjoyable performance of work.

[Boston Journal.]

Mr. Trowbridge has succeeded in creating a most creditable work,interesting to every auditor,adapted to the popular taste, and yet not lacking in those elements that make it worthy of attention from the strict student, a combination always desirable. He has succeeded admirably in wedding the music to the words and at the same time proffering such variety as to hold attention closely. The music is in many cases of great beauty in its harmony and has been well arranged for effect, both as regards the vocalists and the instruments.

[Boston Post.] [Boston Post.]

He has written a pleasant, melodious work, with abundant variety in the rapid succession of choruses solos and concerted pieces, and an occasional "symphony." or orchestral interlude, "thrown in" between. It is likely to take a recognized place in the repertoires of singing clubs and societies that may find the great oratorios of the masters beyond their capabilities.

[Boson Advertiser.]

Its very simplicity and easiness of range will make many of its numbers readily adaptable for chorus work by singers of ordinary ability. This is a good mission work.

passed, and Councilman Dix believed the Highway Committee should have liberty to do it by contract or by day labor as they saw it.

In reply to questions City Engineer Noyes said it was impossible to tell how late into the fall the work could be carried on, as it depended on the weather, and that unless the contractor made a mistake in his estimates the city could do it cheaply with day labor. In Cambridge and Chelsea the day plan had been found the better.

Councilman Chadwick said that while he did not like the talk of an impending veto, he thought the city could do it cheaper as the contractor would have to be constantly watched to see that he did not put in poor work.

Councilman Kennedy again urged the necessity of the work, and referred to the City Engineer's opinion that it could be done for $5500. The relief was particularly needed in the spring.

Councilman Gore was of the opinion that it was an expensive job, and that as Watertown had only $6000 for the work the burden of an increased expense would fall on Newton. Councilmen Redpath and Kennedy were in favor of doing as they wished, irrespective of the mayor's opinion. The latter said that Watertown could appropriate more money as well as Newton. Councilman Chadwick wished to call upon the mayor to explain his meaning about the vote, but to this several objected, and the vote was taken. Councimen Burr, Dix, Gore, Pond and Reed voted in the negative and the order failed to pass, not receiving the necessary two thirds vote. A reconsideration was moved but refused. OTHER MATTERS.

The order from the Aldermen, paying Amaso Crafts $243.15, the amount of money without interest he had paid for land sold for taxes was after an explanation by City Treasurer Kendrick amended so as to read $279.99. This increase was for the interest at 6 per cent on the sum voted him two years ago, but never paid.

In the order relative to sprinkling the streets the word "authorized" was inserted in place of "instructed," making the watering discretionary with the Highway commit cessity of the increase, stating that he was opposed to an increase in appropriations

Councilman Burr asked if the public

Councilman Burr asked if the public property committee had not exceeded its appropriation in regard to the Free Library, and if the last speaker was not a member of that committee? Councilman Kennedy replied that he was, but that the Public Property Committee had not exceeded its appropriation one dollar. The committee kept within its appropriation, but the council had seen fit to appropriate for extra conveniences in the library, which were outside the original plan.

Councilman Tyler said that Councilman Kennedy was right, and said he also wished to hear an explanation.

City Auditor Otis explained; $1,800 was for election expenses, $500 for telephones, $400 for watering troughs and drinking fountains; that a case settled in court had early in the year taken $3,400 of the miscellaneous fund; the Amasa Crafts award had also to be paid from this fund.

The vote being taken, Councilman

Crafts award had also to be paid from this fund.

The vote being taken, Councilman Kennedy voted in the negative, the others voting in the affirmative.

A petition from Wm. Claffin et al, for the laying out of Highland avenue, was referred to committee on Highways.

It seemed the general opinion that a whole evening should be devoted to the discussion of the estimates which were still in the board of alderman, and the council adjourned until Thursday evening at 7.15 p. m.

LARGE ATTENDANCE IN ELIOT HALL

An audience limited in numbers only by the size of Eliot Hall was present at the tenth anniversary of the Newton Young Men's Christian Association Sunday afternoon. Seated upon the platform were life members of the association, the speakers of the afternoon and the invited guests. Many had to stand during the exercises so large was the attendance. A service of praise began the exercises and was conducted by Mr. L. E. Chase, assisted by Miss Park, cornetist, and Mr. C. F. Bacon, organist. The Oxford Male quartette sweetly sang "Remember now thy Creator," following which Rev. Theodore J. Holmes, of Newton Centre, read spoke briefly of the work and of the needs of the association. In view of the president's and secretary's reports, said he, how inadaquate are words to express the meaning of this association's work; eternity alone can fully measure its importance. During the history of this association it has not tacked faithful workers from among the Christian people of Newton. It is my privilege to extend an invitation to all to become co-workers with Him in His work. Heretofore several collections have been taken up, but this year we want to take this one only. The treasury is in a rather depleted condition and it is hoped no one will feel contented to give only the dollar asked for on the envelope, but give five if possible. We are making a grand good use of the money given us. None of it is used to pay salaries, but all is devoted to a work that makes Newton and its people better and happier.

After the collection, which amounted to $73 in pledges, $62 in cash for membership and $41.26 cash undesignated, the vast audience rose and unitedly sang that ever beautiful hymn, "Jesus Lover of my Soul."

nity, and when I count the church spires of your beautiful city I know that the fathers have the word of God, and that Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor Scoieties aid the young people. But I remember that until recently, when a young man became sixteen years of age he left the church and Sunday School, and that few pastors can gather around them the young people of their congregations. The cases of two young men returning from Europe illustrates the two extremes of experience; one has seen the vice and sin of the gay French capital, the other the missions and churches. The latter, even among the slums of London has seen nothing vile. These are the extremes and alas! how many young men chose the former. You live near a great city and know the perils to which young men are exposed. It is because of these dangers that we present the Y. M. C. A. to you. Once a common meeting place for the churches, it is now devoted to the definite work of helping young men.

The Y. M. C. A. is a permanent organ-

BUFFALO BILL ABROAD!

A LITTLE LOVE AFFAIR—WHAT THE COW BOYS THINK OF IT.

The success of "our own" Buffalo Bill

—W. F. Cody—in England is very gratifying to his thousands of admirers on this side.

There was more truth than many imagined in his reply to the inquiry: "What are you doing in England?" "Chiefly playing poker with Duchess-

The English nobility quickly "cottoned that he belonged to a higher order than their own—Nature's nobility. Despite his wild life he early managed to acquire an education and the polish which make him easy even in royal society.

His polish is the bitter fruit, it is said, of a young love experience. When a young man on the plains, wild, woolly and unkempt in appearance and charac ter, he fell in love with a dashing little school teacher. Full of pluck and faith that ever beautiful hymn, "Jesus Lover of my Soul."

MR. F. A. WINSLOW

of Norwood, being introduced as the principal speaker of the day, spoke as follows:

"Dear friends, I am glad to be with you and to bring the congratulations of the Executive committee of the state associations on this the tenth anniversary of your organization. I feel that you are celebrating not only your anniversary, but the beginning of the week of prayer for young men. In June the children have their week of prayer, in January the churches have their's and in November a special effort is made to save and rescue young men.

Centuries after Elijah disclosed to the surprised heathen the armies of the Lord in the air round about him, Christ standing surrounded by eleven young men, told them that the world was theirs and that they must go and win it back to him. It is in this spirit that I address you to-day, and would tell you of the needs of a great class in our cities and the means of salvation of this class. It has been thought that the churches should care for all classes of the commusubject to liver and kidney diseases, and they have found a sure remedy for these troubles in Warner's safe cure. Mawe Beardsley says: "I constantly recommend it to my friends."

Buffalo Bill has pluck and courage and hard sense, and not only controls all the wild elements that make up the Wild West show, but controls himself.

His experience as a scout makes him wary, discreet and shrewd. He quickly learns the best way to secure results, and, like a true man has no prejudices against anything that proves its merits.

Buffalo Bill is so popular in England he may come home a "Sir William." But if not he will probably enjoy himself quite as well, having secured a fortune ample enough for all his wants, title or no title.

THE CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR.

The most important question connected with the coming city election is in regard to the candidate for mayor. Mayor Kimball has served the city with credit for four years, and has given more generfor four years, and has given more generously of his time than any other occupant of the office. His successor will have a difficult task before him, especially as there is a general demand for retrenchment in all city expenses, and putting all the city departments on a strict business basis. The next mayor must be a man who possesses a rigid backbone, and of such character and standing as to command a wholesome retrieval. standing as to command a wholesome respect from all city officials. He must also have had experience in official life and possess executive ability of a high Among all the possible candidates no one seems to fill these requirements in a higher degree than Hon. Robert R.

Bishop of Ward Six. His experience as Bishop of Ward Six. His experience as president of the Senate, when there was such an urgent demand for reform in all state expenditures, gives him a peculiar fitness for bringing about the needed reform in the finances of the city of Newton. He showed himself at that time to be perfectly fearless in following the path of duty, and he put the knife at the root of all sorts of extragance, without any regard for the consequences to himself. As a presiding officer he has few equals, and his election would bring honor to Newton.

It is said that he does not wish the office, but that is only another reason why he should be made to accept it. Here is the city debt increasing every year, the exponditures growing out of all proportion to the income, and it is high time that some attempt at reform and retrenchment should be made. Mr. Bishop has always shown himself to be a patriotic citizen, and if he is decided to be the best man to take charge of city affairs by the great majority of his fellow citizens, it is hardly probable that he

The holding of but one convention to nominate officers, composed of citizens without regard to party, is very near the ideal method of conducting city politics, and the honor of being chosen by such and the honor of being chosen by such a body is one that few men would be able to decline. With Mr. Bishop as mayor, and a city council selected with the same care, citizens could feel assured that all that was possible to do in favor of retrenchment and reform would be

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

Of the retiring members Mr. Fisher Ames will be given a re-election, if the wishes of the people have any influence The hospital is in need of money for wishes of the people have any influence with the nominating convention. He We need just such men as he on our school committee, men of education and tion. It is such men who have given Newton schools their high reputation in the past, and if that reputation is to From May 1, 1887, sixty-five patients he maintained, more attention must be paid to the character of the men who are nominated.

It is reported that Mr. Ames has said that he does not wish to serve again, but that is another reason why he should be chosen. He has no axe to grind, no special enemy to punish, and his past actions have shown that he will always advocate what is best for the schools.

In Ward 7 there seem to be only one sentiment among the people most interested in the schools, and that is that the vacancy shall be filled by the nomination of Rev. F. B. Hornbrooke. No other candidate has been mentioned, and he will make an excellent member of the

The school board has practically unlim-The school board has practically untim-ited power, and is independent of any other branch of the city government, and therefore the greatest care should be ex-ercised in selecting intelligent and conscientious candidates, who will use their power wisely and for the best interests of the schools and of the city. Those interested in the public schools in these two wards should select the three new members with great care.

DEMOCRATIC TACTICS.

The Republican Ward and City Committee appointed a sub-committee to confer with the Democratic Ward and City Committee as to calling non-party City Committee as to caring non-party caucuses for the next municipal election. Wednesday evening the Democratic Ward and City Committee met and discussed the matter, and appointed a committee of seven of its members to unite with a like committee of the Republican Ward and City Committee, to call a nonparty mass convention, to nominate a mayor, board of aldermen, and members of the school committee. A strong effort was made in the Democratic Ward and City Committee to get ward caucuses instead of a mass convention, but the committee deemed a mass convention the better method. It is believed the Republican Ward and City Committee will not agree to a non-party mass convention, for the reason that it does not afford either a fair or practical method of securing the best nominations, to say nothing about the great inconvenience of it, and the exclu-sion of women who are entitled to vote for members of the school committee.

The Democrats, if they insist upon a mass convention, will stand before the community in the next election as absoan honest desire to abandon party lines in our municipal elections. It is to be hoped, now that an honest effort is being made to do away with party and parti-zan nominations for our city offices, that the Democratic Ward and City Commitsion, and join hands with the Republition.

SEPARATE CAUCUSES.

The demand for separate caucuses for the nomination of candidates for the school board is such a reasonable one that it should be heeded. Every consideration of fairness and of justice also is in favor of such a course. What is the use of granting the ballot to women, and then giving them no voice in the selection of candidates for whom those ballots are to be cast?

The school board and the other offices of the city government are so distinct that there is no necessity and no opportunity to consider both at the same meeting. Politics have more or less connection with the one questions of finance, of taxes, of city business; while with the other the case is the reverse. The school board is too important a matter to be mixed up with other things, and the folly of it has been demonstrated.

Let separate caucuses be held to which all who are entitled to vote are admitted, and the candidates chosen will then be the best to be obtained. Those who are most interested in the schools will be present, prepared to take an active part, The experiment is certainly worth try-ing, and Newton should set the example

HOSPITAL SUNDAY.

In the discussion of candidates for other offices, it should not be forgotten that there are five members of the school board to be elected this fall, one in Ward 4, two in Ward 3, and two in Ward 4.

Of the retiring members Mr. Fisher

People who do not attend any church are not therefore prevented from contributing to the fund to be raised on Sunday next. It is now the middle of November, and even had the common council passed the order, cold weather would have come before the drain could have been fairly commenced, the ground would be frozen, and the work could not have been done to advantage. to advantage.

The Watertown officials have carried their point, which was to interpose as many obstacles as possible, and prevent anything being done this year. The committee who had charge of the matter are very shrewd men, and they had our Highway committee at a disadvantage, as the Newton men were anxious to do the work, and willing to accept almost any terms. The action of the common council does not make any real difference, as the work could not have been done as the work could not have been done now until next spring. The Morse field residents will have to suffer another year with what patience they can, and their desire to leave a town which is so unwilling to expend any money for their benefit is not to be wondered at.

GENERAL DRAPER of Hopedale is said to be more than willing to be the next Republican candidate for Congress from this district. He is a wealthy manufacturer and therefore an extreme protect ionist, but these two qualifications would never enable him to win in such a close district as this. The next nominee of the party must be a man of first class ability and of more than a merely local reputation, or he can not be elected.

THE EVENING RECORD says: "The political pot in Newton is bubbling slightly, on account of the possibility that Mayor Kimball may not run again." "Bubbling slightly" hardly expresses the

The manifest interest was such that he will commence the class next Tuesday evening, Nov. 22d at 7.30 o'clock. —The auction sale of the scats in the enlarged Unitarian church attracted a large number of people, Tuesday evening, and the sale was very successful. Mr. E. C. Burrage presided, and Mr. Fagan of Brookline acted as auctioneer. Sixty-five pews were sold, nearly double the number owned by individuals in the old church. The prices were put down on a diagram, copies of which were distributed, the highest value being $200. Mr. E. B. Haskell bid in the first pew at $200 premium, J. E. Bacon bid $155 premium, L. H. Felton $200, F. L. Felton $175, J. L. Stone $185, L. G. Pratt $165, G. B. Wilbur $150, J. H. Nickerson $110, G. A. Frost $130, all taking $200 pews. The premiums then dropped gradually until they reached $25. In addition to those sold 12 pews were rented for 37 per cent of their value, and 27 were left untaken, but part of these have since been rented. The sale was very satisfactory, and exceeded the most sanguine expectations. The church now will seat comfortably $04 people, and contains nearly double the number of pews in the building before the recent addition.

—The first meeting of the West Newton Educational Club conced very double the number of pews in the building before the recent addition.

—The first meeting of the West Newton Educational Club opened very auspiciously, a large number in attendance. Mrs. Walton in her welcome to the club, dwelt upon its two principal objects, that of the promotion of fraternal feeling and mutual improvement among its members. Mrs. Jaynes foilowed with a fine piano selection, played in her usual expressive style. Succeeding her, Mrs. Graves gave a pleasing account of her trip dcwn the St. Lawrence, Mrs. Wobster improved her summer leisure at home, writing a sketch of the Nonantum Indians, and their settlement on our Newton soil. Mrs. Phipps read a very fanciful and interesting Geological essay, styled "my day with the congromer erate pebbles of Newton Highlands." "A day of pleasure among the ruins of Roman Antiquities" by Mrs. Marshall Wood, and a retrospect of her summer on the Amazon, by Mrs Gould were also read. Mrs. Walton closed with a paper, counterpart of the one she gave the club a former season, "what I did with my Domine on a journey," which was doubly entertaining. The next meeting will be held Nov. 25th. The subject of the essay will be "The nervous system and its effect upon the body," by Mrs. Dr. Bates of Newton Centre; remembering the one she delivered at the City Hall two or three years since, it promises to be a very instructive one.

(Written for the GRAPHIC.) AN IMMORTELLE.

A fresh, pink bud,
All rosy like the morn,
Grew on my sill
The day our babe was born.
At first, all close
The petals 'round did press
Its fragrant heart,
And we could only guess
At what was hid
Within each veined cell
Of rose and white.
Still did the sweet bud sweli.
The glowing sun
Each day tried all his power
To open It.—

To open it,—
To take the bud a flower.
My wonder grew;
I watched it hour by hour—
I did not know did not know The name of my sweet flower. One of God's winds Had dropped the little seed Into the earth All fitted for its need. At last the bud

Burst on a glowing sheaf;
Of crimson bloom.
Each ruddy, fragrant leaf, Instinct with lire, Answered my question well;
I knew my flower—

It was an Immortelle Close in my arms My little baby lies— I can but guess What lies behind those eyes, So deep and blue.
All trustful is the gaze Thich meets my own.

I watched for many days My bud unfold Her petals to the sun
Of loving smiles. 4
Full swift the days wore on, Her great eyes look With recognition sweet
Into my own.
A dimpled smile will greet And answer mine, My eager eyes would peer

Beyond the now--Wistful I bend to hear Some faint, far sound To tell my mother-love What flower will come

Above the clouds, a voice Of Christly tenderness-'The little ones Suffer to come to Me, Suffer to such
It is of such
My Kingdom great shall be."
I bow my head, Will Christ's self hath answered well

My questionings— I have an Immortelle.

M. D. T, AFBATTLE-FLAG.

"Capt. Turner, it cannot be; it is impossible."

"Do you say that because I am a Northern soldier while your sympathies are all for the South?" Clara Teliafer did not reply for a mo-ment. She had been looking the haudsome captain frankly in the eyes, and her own face had been lighted with resolution and courage, but now her glance wavered, her pale cheek flushed, and she pressed her lips together as she turned aside her head and saw without noting them the sharp blue tops of mountains miles away to the east where the Tennessee wound tortuously along its course; saw the broad stretch of cotton fields and orchards; the group of huts where the darkies of the plantation were quartered; the capacious barns, the pass-ing slaves, and the silhouette of the ancient well-sweep against the horizen. With such speed and precision as only a disturbed and excited brain can draw them, the events of the last three weeks appeared in living pictures before her mental vision. She saw her home in a neighboring town disordered in the tur moil of war; her house made the headquarters of the Confederate forces; her husband in command; her glad departure from the scene of probable battle to a supposed refuge at the plantation of her former schoolfellow, Mrs. Mary John-ston; she felt again the relief of absence from a husband many years her senior whom she had never loved; and then she saw the little garrison left at the planta-tation surprised and captured by a battalion of Northern soldiers, the place become an outpost of the Union army, the house the quarters of Capt. Henry Turner, herself a prisoner; she recalled her resentment at the episode, her rashly-formed plan to revenge herself and benefit the Southern cause at the same which she was introduced to the captain as "Miss" Teliafer; and as she reviewed in a flash her adroit coquetry with the Northerner, the color depended on her cheeks and the keenest repentance pricked her conscience; for not only had her scheme succeeded, not only was the her scheme succeeded, not only was the captain her vanquished victim, but she saw in him a noble enemy to whom her heart had warmed before she knew it; and when she had discovered that, intent upon possessing his heart, she had lost sight of her own, she had tried to withdraw from the contest, but found it too late. Capt. Turner needed no further baiting to draw him on, but pressed his suit with all the ardor and vehemence of a deep passion. Her course was clear enough; duty demauded that she hold the more firmly to her original plan, and every impulse of her being dictated the sternest rejection of his overtures, but there was now what she had not anticipated as an element in the case, a powerful desire to retain his respect for her. She could not bear to think that he should learn her deceit and despise her, and yet further deception was intolerably abhorrent. Cant. Turner waited for her should learn her deceit and despise her, and yet further deception was intolerably abhorrent. Capt. Turner waited for her answer, little dreaming of the torrent of thought and emotion that was surging through her brain. With a great effort she held fast her fleeting courage, looked up at him again, and responded:

"No, Capt. Turner, that's not the reason."

"No, Capt. Turner, that's not the reason."
"But what other reason can there be? You have but just now said that no love for another stands between us; I could not believe that possible even did your own lips tell me so. You have told me more clearly than words could express it that you love me, Clara. You will not deliberately arouse in me a suspicion that you have played the coquet!"
The captain frowned and looked fixedly at her. "There is something more here," he said in a low tone, "than I can understand"— stand— s'' she interrupted, eagerly, "much Believe me, I cannot tell you.

Let me go away. You command this post and can give me such escort as will insure my reaching the Southern lines in safety."

THE NEWTON GRAPHIC, PRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 12

The start of a year. You command the control of the Before the Captain had reached the spot where he had parted with Clara Teliafer he had left his horse in the forest, had roused a darkey in a solitary cabin by the road, secured a suit of rough homespun clothing, and put it on instead of his uniform. And it was not ten o'clock when he found himself walking in the rambling street of the village where the enemy had his beadquarters. He admitted to himself as he slouched along that he had taken an extraordinary course, the fundamental reason of which was a mad desire to see Clara again and learn the secret of her refusal of his affection. Where she was he knew not, but he wandered on in a fever of agitation hoping to find her. He would have inquired the way to the Teliafer mansion, but he dared not take the risk of appearing to be a stranger. It was difficult and dangerous enough to pass the pickets without adding to his troubles. And as he walked the remores for his neglect of duty grew upon him and finally overmastered every other sentiment, and he cursed himself for having fallen into a trap set for him by a Rebel coquette. Then his determination to redeem his folly by a heroic act for his country returned with full force, and he fastened his attention upon the captured flag. And yet he did not know whether it would be brought to this village, or where it would be or had been put. And he swore to himself that from being an ignoble fool he had become a blundering, brainless simpleton. The town was quiet and on the main street looked little like the centre of a conflict. As he stood discontentedly communing with himself he heard a sound that caused him to withdraw from the street and hide under a great rose-bush in a private yard. It was a company of men marching up the road. As they passed, people came to the doors and looked out, and stragglers appeared in the streets. The light from the doors and windows enabled him to see the soldiers with reasonable distinctness. They were marching in a loose fashion but rapidly. Almost in the front rank was a man bearing in surmised that the colonel was making a speech to the soldiers and citizens. Glancing toward the back of the house he saw a woman emerge from the shadow and walk rapidly towards the garden. Once more his blood leaped as he recognized Clara, and losing his head in his impetuous passion he ran into the hall and started down stairs. The sight of the people on the piazza recalled his situation and he returned. He saw no back stairs and dared not hunt for any. He re-entered the library, and, letting himself out from the window towards the garden, dropped to the ground. He lay perfectly still a minute, and then, as no one seemed to have noticed his movements, he crept out into the garden. It was extensive, and he wandered about several minutes before he found any trace of Clara. At last he stood before her, where she sat on a bench with a handkerchief to her eyes.

"Clara," he sand quietly.

She sprang up with a stifled scream. Her tongue was tied and her voice sunk away into her throat.

"Clara," continued the captain, "I have come to know why you reject me."

For a moment her Southern pride revolted, and it was on her lips to deny imperionsly his right to further consideration from her, but her terror for him overcame her, and she whispered, "O, do you not know what fearful danger you are in?"

"I do; I know full well what it would mean to me to be found here, but I shall stay until I know will well what it would mean to me to be found here, but I shall stay until I know will would well will stay until I know will wall wall it would mean to me to be found here, but I shall stay until I know will wall wall it would mean to me to be found here, but I shall stay until I know will wall wall it do not deserve it." Then rapidly and with increasing agitation: "You love me, Henry, and honor me. I have not dared to tell you before how dearly I return your affection and respect—no, no, wat till am through; I only dare to speak now because it is the only way to save your life. It would save myself in your estimation if I could

Sergeant betrayed the Captain's confidence to the Lieutenant, and had the boys come out from the camp to effect a rescue? It could not seem possible, and yet there was another flash. Yes, it was a bayonet, and it must be a Northern. The rope pressed upon his throat. He felt it tighten against his larynx; his body rose from the ground, and a stckening sense of pressure on all his limbs mingled sorrily with bitter disappointment as a film gathered before his eyes and the flashes of Northern bayonets went out. But he heard a rattle of musketry, sharp and vivid, and he realized that the men pulling at the end of the rope had loosened their hold. A swaying for an instant and he fell to the ground, where he lay helpless, bound as he was, and overcome with the exhaustion of the choking. Then a welcome voice broke his ear. The rope was taken from his throat, and the Sergeant cried:

"Look up. Cap.! look up! We've got voice broke his ear. The rope was taken from his throat, and the Sergeant cried:

"Look up. Cap.! look up! We've got 'mon the run!"

Still dazed and blinded the Captain saw a hand-to-hand struggale, hot and fierce, all about him. A little removed from the maim fight he saw two men dimly in the dusk and smoke wrestling with drawn weapons over a Confederate flag. The color-bearer had been shot dewn, and some one had sprung into the herach and was contending with Lieu. Winkler. The Captain could not see who it was, but he realized the danger of his Lieutenant, and reaching to the Sergeant's belt he drew out the pistol suspended there, aimed at the Lieutenant's antagonist, and shot him. Then he struggled to his feet and ran to the spot where Winkler stood victoriously folding up the Rebel flag. The rout of the enemy was complete, and in two minutes more all the officers of the little command were gathered about the Captain to offer their congratulations on his escape.

"Did you get the colors, Captain?"

command were gathered about the Captain to offer their congratulations on his escape.

"Did you get the colors, Captain?" asked the Sergeant cheerily.

"Yes,' replied Capt. Turner, wearily opening his vest and showing the flag wrapped about his body; "but, Sergeant, I pay sadly for it all. Look here," and he pointed to the dead body of the defender of the Rebel flag. "She is free now, but how can it profit me when my own bloody hand freed her?"

He was pointing to the face of Col. Teliafer. The Sergeant and the officers did not understand him, but there was no time for questions, for the Captain fell forward in a faint, and as they carried his unconscions form to the plantation they said it was no wonder a man should be prostrated by the excitement of being strunglup to a itee. He was ill for many days, and Lieut. Winkler, who wrote the report of the affair for the Colonel of the regiment, made sure that nothing but honer should be the share of his Captain.—Chicago Tribune.
